Bitter cold to follow snowfall

Temperatures of between 10 and 20 degrees below zero are expected to greet Dixon area citizens when they awake Thursday morning.

Numbing arctic winds, accompanied by a 1 1/4 inch snowfall moved into the area Wednesday night and temperatures have dropped steadily.

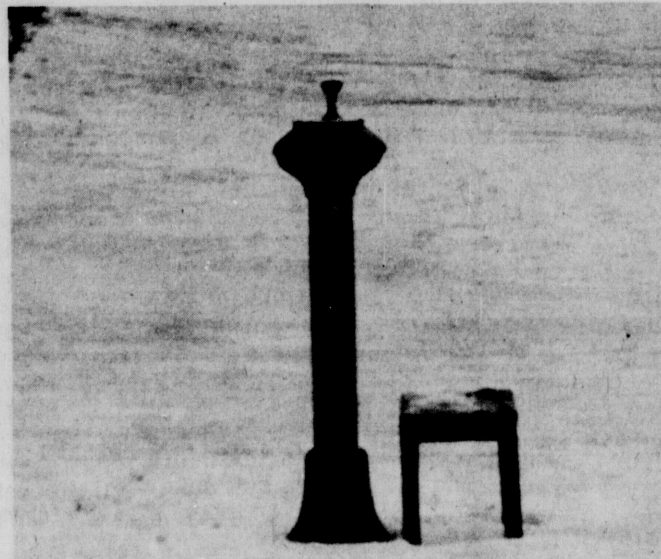

Street Supt. Charles Sterrick said it was 28 degrees above zero when city street department crews started plowing and spreading salt Wednesday night. By 11:30 this morning the mercury had plummeted to eight degrees above.

Sterrick said city trucks worked throughout the night with salt and plows. The north winds accompanying the snow caused drifting problems, with North Brinton, Galena and Palmyra Avenues the trouble spots.

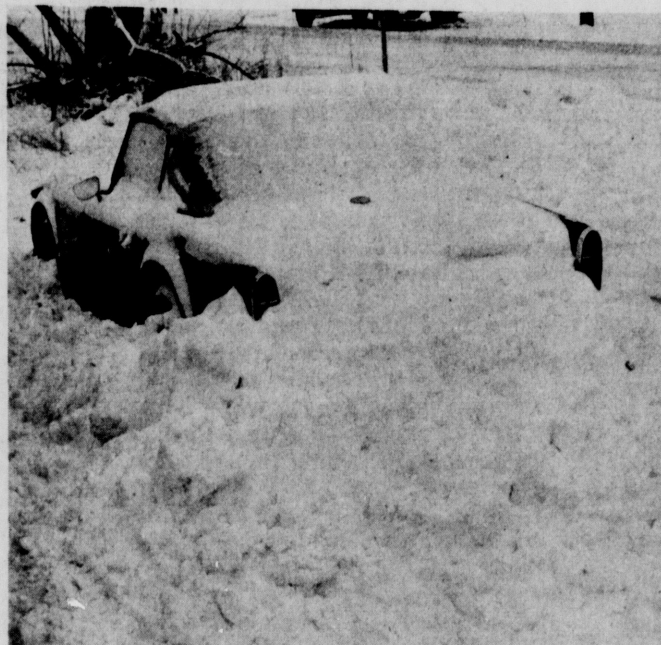

The trucks began plowing back to the curbs this morning and are expected to be finished with that job by noon, he added. "The job was made difficult because there wasn't quite enough snow to plow efficiently," he commented. "We're sometimes better off keeping the streets snow free if we get three or four inches."

State trucks were busy on highways in the area. There were reported slick spots because of the drifting.

The snowfall was widespread over the northern half of the state. Peoria and Springfield each reported one inch. There were two inches in Chicago, Decatur and Quincy, while Rockford received four inches.

A drinking fountain, welcome sight to visitors to Ballou Park in the summer, sits isolated and unneeded in the snowy park. (Telegraph Photo)

Christian stronghold in Beirut falls to guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas overran a major Christian stronghold in northeast Beirut today after a night-long artillery barrage.

Lebanon's capital was plunged into a new round of civil war after a two-week Christmas-New Year lull. The Palestinians appeared to be taking a greater part in the conflict.

A police spokesman said the guerrillas attacked Horsh Thabet, a two-square-mile residential area, at daybreak and punched a hole in the blockade with which right-wing Christian militiamen had been keeping food convoys from two Palestinian refugee camps since Sunday.

Christian militiamen were dislodged from Horsh Thabet in savage fighting that included hand-to-hand combat. First reports said 16 persons were killed and 29 wounded, the spokesman said.

A guerrilla's antitank rocket knocked out an army personnel carrier caught in the crossfire, and six troops were seriously wounded, the spokesman said.

The Christians mounted a counterattack later in the day and regained control of a small part of the area, the police said. They said the Christians were besieging guerrillas in a four-story apartment building, and the guerrillas threatened to kill the tenants unless the siege was called off.

A guerrilla spokesman denied the report of the counterattack and of the apartment house siege.

Guerrilla gunners in the two hillside refugee camps trained their antiaircraft guns down and pounded Christian positions all night. Christian neighborhoods retaliated with barrages of rocket grenades, mortars and 120mm shells.

The fighting spread to all other eastern and northeastern suburbs of the Lebanese capital. Mortar and rocket duels continued this morning, police said.

The warring Christian and Moslem militiamen raced around the city in armed jeeps all night throwing up sandbag barricades.

A Christian blockade since Sunday had prevented a convoy of food trucks from reaching the Tel Zaatar and Jisr al-Basha refugee camps, which control the northeastern approaches to Beirut. More than 27,000 Palestinians live in the camps.

Palestinian leaders broke off negotiations with representatives of the right-wing Christian Phalange party after Phalangist gunmen confiscated 30 tons of flour from two of the trucks in the convoy.

A government spokesman said Premier Rashid Karami, a Moslem, promised to get the supplies — including flour, sugar, rice and dry milk — to the two camps. But Christian gunmen turned back two more trucks early today.

The Syrian government announced that it was ready to make another attempt to mediate between the warring Moslem leftists and right-wing Christians. Karami said in a television speech that he still believed the government could arrest the deterioration in the situation and "set the country back on the course of a return to normalcy."

But the second-in-command of Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian guerrilla organization, said the guerrillas "will fight a 50-year war in Lebanon and will sacrifice 50,000 martyrs" to prevent a partition of the country into Christian and Moslem divisions, a solution some Christian leaders are talking about.

2 more western nations may join Angola Red cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence sources predict two more Western Hemisphere countries will soon come out in support of the Soviet-backed faction in the Angola civil war.

Intelligence sources said they have received strong indications that the governments of Jamaica in the Caribbean and Guyana in South America will formally recognize the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), an action already taken by Brazil.

These sources forecast that such action will follow expected recognition of the MPLA by the Organization of African Unity (OAU), which convenes later this week in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

U.S. intelligence sources also have been watching the movement of a Soviet guided-missile destroyer down the west coast of Africa in recent days for any indications it may sail toward Angola. At last report, the destroyer was steaming west of Guinea.

The Russians have stationed an amphibious tank-landing ship some 300 miles off the northern Angolan coast for some time in what is regarded by some U.S. analysts as a further demonstration of Soviet interest in that area of Africa and its adjoining waters.

The Soviets have moved destroyers and tank-landing ships in and out of Conakry, Guinea, for several years. Analysts say that even if the destroyer meets with the tank-landing ship at sea off Angola, it would be more a symbolic, show-the-flag gesture than a significant military show of force, considering the relatively small naval power involved.

On the diplomatic front, sources said a three-man MPLA delegation recently visited both Jamaica and Guyana and received assurances of at least moral support from leaders of both countries.

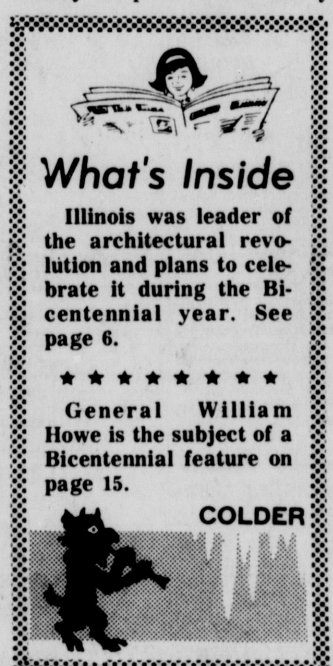

There are reports that Guyana may demonstrate its support for the MPLA by sending a small medical team to Angola.

More significantly, recognition of the MPLA could be followed by open use of Guyana's facilities for refueling Cuban airplanes lifting troops to Angola. This would amount to defiance of the United States.

If, as U.S. intelligence expects, Guyana formally backs the MPLA, it would be somewhat ironic because Guyana's present prime minister, Forbes Burnham, was installed in 1964 with substantial help from the CIA. The CIA was concerned at the time over control of the Guyana government by Marxist Cheddi Jagan.

As for recent fighting in Angola, U.S. intelligence sources said the MPLA may have taken Negage, described as a key stronghold in northern Angola, from U.S.-supported troops.

Reports reaching Washington said Soviet-built T34 tanks were used in the attack on Negage, a possible indication that Cuban troops are engaged.

Court rules against Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special three-judge court ruled today that millions of documents and the White House tapes accumulated while Richard M. Nixon was president be turned to the government and not to Nixon.

The ruling upholds the constitutionality of a new federal law providing public access to thousands of hours of tapes and about 42 million documents.

The court said, however, that the records of the Nixon years would remain locked up for the present.

The three judges said Nixon's complaint claiming ownership of the records "is dismissed without merit."

Issuing the opinion were U.S. Court of Appeals Judges Carl McGowan and Edward A. Tamm and U.S. District Court Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr.

Coalition government in Italy is doomed

ROME (AP) — The Italian socialist party withdrew its support from Premier Aldo Moro's government today, dooming the 13-month-old minority coalition of Christian Democrats and Republicans.

The Socialist party, Italy's third largest, acted after a report from party leader Francesco de Martino urged the Socialists to desert the government and demand a new "emergency" administration.

De Martino had charged that the government — Italy's 32nd since the end of World War II — had been operating "with open disdain for the position of other parties, particularly of the Socialists."

The secretary of the Italian Republican party meanwhile denied that the party or its officials had ever received funds from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Odo Biasini, a parliamentary deputy, said he had sent a letter to the New York Times asking it to publish a denial that the Republicans received CIA money.

The Times and the Washington Post reported that the CIA had recently stepped up covert activities in Italy including funding of non-Communist political parties because of growing Communist strength at the polls. The papers said President Ford on Dec. 8 authorized distribution of about $6 million.

The Republicans are a small party which received about 3 per cent of the vote in the 1972 parliamentary elections.

The United States helped support anti-Communist political groups in Italy for 19 years, from 1948 until disclosure of the undercover contributions in 1967.

The Socialist defection would leave Moro assured of only 310 votes in the 630-member Chamber of Deputies, six short of a majority.

Political sources said the government would probably resign by Thursday at the latest. They predicted that Moro would then open negotiations with de Martino to try to get the Socialists to rejoin the government coalition, which they quit in October 1974.

their readiness to return to the government if the Christian Democrats, the dominant force in Italian politics ever since the war, guarantee to make

"profound changes" in economic policy and to involve the Communist party, Italy's second biggest, in the determination of national policy.

Failure to find a new government formula would result in election of a new Chamber of Deputies in the spring, a year ahead of schedule, with the Communists and the Socialists likely to repeat the gains they made in regional elections last June. In that voting, the Communists got 33 per cent of the vote, only two percentage points less than the Christian Democrats.

Husbands dislike cops and robbers

Indiana sisters foil bank robbery

AMBOY, Ind. (AP) — Two sisters who foiled a bank robbery in this tiny northern Indiana railroad community of 476 are heroines to their children, but their husbands wish they'd leave cops-and-robbers to someone else.

"My husband is a little unhappy because I had my 2-year-old son with me," Rebecca Griggs, 28, said. "But my daughters are jumping up and down, saying their mommy caught a bank robber."

Mrs. Griggs used her belt to tie up a suspected bandit Tuesday after her sister, Shirley "Casey" Bowland, 27, disabled the getaway car. A second suspect was caught a short time later as he missed jumping on the caboose of a moving freight train.

Mrs. Bowland said she and her sister were waiting at the drive-up window of the Farmers National Bank branch Tuesday afternoon when they saw a car with its engine running parked across the street.

"Becky said, 'Do you think they're robbing the bank?' You know, just as a joke," Mrs. Bowland said after the incident.

She said the bank's manager, Herman Agness, 64, then ran out of the bank, told them the bank was being robbed and asked them to go for help.

"I turned their car off and started letting air out of their tires," she said. "I was there when they came out of the bank and I beelined it for the restaurant — I didn't know if they had a gun."

Mrs. Bowland said she jumped back in the car with her sister and they took off after the suspects who fled on foot after they found their car disabled.

Agness said he watched the women round a building from one direction and Ehrhardt Ballschmidt, 32, owner of the community's lone supermarket, came from the other.

"Ehrhardt fired one shot, then the robber threw up his hands and said 'I give up,'" Mrs. Bowland said. "We told him to lay on the ground and spread 'em. Becky took off her belt and we tied his hands."

"I'll be damned if one of those girls didn't have a foot on the guy," Agness said. "Then they marched him up town in front of their car and waited for the state police."

Just to make sure the men didn't find another car key and get away, Agness shot out a tire on the car, Mrs. Bowland said.

Held in the Miami County jail in Peru were Clarence Bailey, 27, and his brother Alvin, 23, both of Gary. Alvin was delivered by the women, police said.

Agness said the holdup men were armed with a sawed-off shotgun and herded all the employees and customers into the vault — but they didn't see him because he was in the back of the building.

He wouldn't say how much money was taken but that every dime of it was found on the railroad tracks, along with the sawed-off shotgun.

This small trailer was the scene of an attempted arson Tuesday evening. (Telegraph Photo)

Alert neighbor prevents bad damage in arson case

Dixon Police are continuing their investigation into an attempted arson that occurred Tuesday evening in a vacant used-car lot at 112 W. Everett St.

Only quick action by a neighbor saved a camper-trailer parked on the lot from being destroyed by flames.

Wayne Mick was backing from his garage at 122 W. Everett St. when he noticed the reflection of flames on his garage. Upon investigation, Mick found flames shooting from the rear of the trailer. He snapped a limb off a nearby tree and used it to pull burning materials from the trailer, putting out the fire.

Investigating Police Detective Robert Short said that a rear door had been pried open by unknown persons who placed a burning bottle, stuffed with oil-soaked rags, inside the trailer. Due to Mick's quick work, damage to the trailer was minor.

The trailer, owned by Ellwyn Montross, 718 Chamberlin St., had been used as an office for Don and Monty's used car lot, although no cars had been located on the lot for several months. The site is under consideration for the establishment of a McDonald's Restaurant.

Obsolete treaties reviewed by Ford

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

President Ford has quietly ordered Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to review our obsolete treaties—some good, some bad, but all of them costly.

Without consulting Mr. Kissinger, Mr. Ford asked the Defense Department to list our overseas bases and the installations where we maintain U.S. troops.

The Defense Department replied with a top-secret, green-covered book. It required 712 pages merely to list what the President asked for.

Mr. Ford was appalled.

The top-secret document revealed that we have a military presence today in 38 countries. Much of this costly presence results from no fewer than 42 treaties. And only about 200 of the citations in the 712 pages are officially listed as vital.

Yet for years on end we pour our taxpayers' billions and recklessly strain our dangerous balance of international payments by window-dressing defense treaties that are utterly useless to frighten or restrain an enemy.

Such obsolete treaties never seem to die—they just spend and spend away.

Mr. Ford told Mr. Kissinger that we are spending nearly $5 billion this year on the presences in 38 countries and that almost half of them are a balance of international-payments drain on the United States.

For example, Mr. Ford noted that the Inter-American Treaty is still operative. It was signed in 1947—29 years ago. It is typical of those treaties that are obviously worthless because the countries which the United States lined up to sign them do not support them.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) pact was signed in 1949. Twelve countries signed it. Greece, Turkey and West Germany were included later. The member countries agreed to settle disputes by peaceful means; to regard an attack on one as an attack on all NATO countries, and they swore to repel such an attack under Article 21 of the United Nations Charter. But, except for Greece and West Germany, not a single one of our NATO allies has at any time in the 26 years met its level-of-forces obligation.

When France threw out NATO our U.S. loss in our NATO investment inside France exceeded $2.5 billion. As this columnist wrote on Oct. 20, the United States left in France at least $550 million in U.S. facilities usable by France. But we claimed only $370 million of this $550 million.

Then the United States settled with France for only $100 million of the $550 million. In addition, we allowed France five years to pay the $100 million without interest.

Moreover, even though France threw NATO out of France we are obligated by still another treaty to come to the aid of France. For France hung on to the Brussels Treaty of March 17, 1948.

That treaty was signed 27 years ago. It formed the Western European Alliance, NATO's predecessor, and is still operative.

About 320,000 of NATO's armed men are Americans. The Defense Department estimated to Mr. Ford that it costs at least $8,000 a year to keep one fighting man in Western Europe. That is $2.4 billion a year against our balance of international-payments, plus a Mt. Everest of extras.

The issue is not NATO's potential value. Mr. Ford feels that NATO is indispensable. The issue is the real effectiveness of disproportionately large U.S. ground forces if our NATO allies fail to supply their own.

Our largely inoperative SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization) treaty was signed in 1954. Japan's reluctance to support it stems from America's doubtful attempt to link it with ANZUS, the Australian-New Zealand-U.S. security pact which was operative in Vietnam. Yet we have poured more and more money and trained personnel into the old SEATO setup just the same.

In ordering Secretary Kissinger to review the outstanding treaties in the Defense Department's 712-page secret listing, Mr. Ford insisted that merely translating a crusading spirit into frail and ambiguous treaties, promoted to show a united front with the United States, means absolutely nothing. Nor do the taxpayers' money and the trained personnel that the United States pours into them.

More on marijuana

If marijuana were legalized, the Surgeon General might have another problem on his desk. He might have to require that it carry an even stronger health warning than is presently printed on each package of tobacco cigarettes.

According to a report made at the First Chemical Congress of the North American Continent held in Mexico City recently, smoke from marijuana cigarettes has been found to contain higher concentrations of several known cancer-causing agents (carcinogens) than tobacco smoke.

Not only that, but the more potent the pot, the larger the amounts of potential carcinogens, said Indiana University chemistry professor Milos Novotny.

In other words, the higher you fly, psychedelically, the harder you may fall, medically.

The marijuana-tobacco comparison was made using smoking machines and the weighing the trapped smoke condensates.

The fact that the "recommended" method of smoking marijuana (so we are told) is to take a deep drag and hold it as long as possible in the lungs would seem to suggest that, for humans, marijuana may be even more hazardous to the health than the Indiana University study indicates.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

Ronald Reagan, the former Dixomite who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of California, will appear "live" on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday at noon. The program can be seen on channel 6.

In the NCIC Dixon will travel to Spring Valley for a game with Hall, who is the league cellar-dweller, in what could be a very tight contest. La Salle-Peru will host Streater, currently in first place. L-P is tied with Dixon and Mendota for third place.

25 YEARS AGO

Dixonites who have not already disposed of their Christmas trees now have the chance to get rid of them at the "city's inconvenience." City trucks will collect and haul away trees Wednesday and Thursday. People are asked to lay the trees between the street and the curb for collection.

Dixon's fighting Dukes came from behind six times Saturday night to win a 61-58 thriller from Rock Falls before a home crowd, to average a 57-41 licking handed them earlier in the season by the Rockets. The game was close all the way with the count being knotted thirteen times.

50 YEARS AGO

The picturesque clamming fleet of Rock River will go into drydock for several years to come, according to a ruling by the state department of conservation which puts a ban on clamming in Rock River for the next few years. The taking of mussel for commercial purposes has grown into quite an industry in this section. However, clamming is thought to disturb the spawning of fish and the state is attempting to restock Rock River with fish. The penalty for illegal clamming is $50-$200 fine and 30-60 days in jail.

The Acrobats

U.S. no time to speak softly

By DON OAKLEY

The great debate over Angola continues, with much heat but precious little light being shed on certain fundamental questions:

Just who are the various factions contending for power in that country? What do they represent? Whom are we being asked to support, and whom oppose? And why?

The American people know less about Angola and the Angolans than they did about Vietnam and the Vietnamese in 1964. The issue is stated solely in terms of United States-Soviet rivalry and U.S. response to yet another insidious Communist challenge to our role as defender of freedom around the world.

To co-columnists Rowland Evans and Robert Novak, the "stampede to isolationism" by anti-administration Democrats and the "congressional rampage" against President Ford's "comparatively modest" efforts to slow the rise of the Soviet-backed MLPA to total control of Angola reflects a superpower in decline and symbolizes U.S. inability to respond to Soviet challenges because of the ravages of Vietnam and 10 years of internal political upheaval.

The Soviets, says the Wall Street Journal, are "testing our resolve."

Well, they tested our intelligence with the 1972 wheat deal. They tested our gullibility in the first SALT disarmament agreements. Now they are apparently testing the limits of our devotion to detente.

Perhaps it is time the United States did a little testing of its own. Rather than opposing the Soviet Union by proxy again, rather than investing our national prestige in a part of the world whose politics are far more tangled than they were in Vietnam, perhaps it is time we went right to the heart of the matter—to the Kremlin itself.

True, Secretary of State Kissinger has been dropping increasingly strong hints about the danger Soviet meddling in Africa poses to detente. But his words are merely words, backed up by no real prospect of deterrent penalties, and the Soviets know it.

What penalties could we impose?

We could, for one thing, stop underwriting the Soviet economy with massive shipments of grain. For another, we could stop exporting our industrial and scientific technology to the Soviet Union.

But we won't if the administration has its way. We will continue to bluster about Soviet "recolonization" of Africa and frighten ourselves with the vision of a Soviet colossus astride the Atlantic shipping lanes, even as we continue to provide the Soviet Union with much of the economic wherewithal to pursue its imperialistic adventures.

And as long as we continue to base our policy on knee-jerk reactions to Soviet initiatives, as if the world were a giant red-and-white checkerboard with our attention presently focused on a square that happens to be labeled Angola, we will continue to play a foolish and costly game according to rules laid down by the Kremlin.

Ironically, even as we propose taking the imperialistic onus off the backs of the Russians in Angola and putting it on ourselves, interesting developments are occurring in another square of the checkerboard which we "lost" to communism after the expenditure of 56,000 lives and untold billions of dollars. The North Vietnamese are actively courting normal diplomatic relations with the United States and are seeking American, not Russian or Chinese, assistance in developing their oil resources.

The debate over Angola is not the sign of a superpower in decline. It is an indication that we are learning to view the world in terms other than a threat to our prestige here and a menace to our survival there and are beginning to ask ourselves where our long-term interests truly lie and how they can best be served.

Nuclear numbers game

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission recently came forth with a careful, detailed study mathematically calculating the chances of major nuclear accidents and the deaths and damage likely to be caused.

The work was carried out by a scientist of considerable reputation, an honest, able, upright man.

The conclusions, nevertheless, are false and misleading. They are the result of a mathematical anomaly and are not privately taken at face value by senior scientists in the agency with whom this reporter has been in contact.

The study finds that the chance of any individual dying from an accident in a nuclear-powered utility plant in any one year is a minuscule one in five billion—assuming 100 nuclear plants—as contrasted with a one in 4,000 chance of dying in an automobile accident, a one in 10,000 chance of being killed in a fall, a one in 30,000 chance of drowning. The probability of 100 persons dying in a nuclear reactor accident—again assuming 100 operating nuclear utility plants—is calculated at one in 100,000 years, roughly the same probability as 100 persons being killed in a meteorite impact. In contrast with one chance in 16 years of 100 people dying in an explosion, or one in seven years of 100 dying in a fire.

This would seem to place nuclear accidents as one of the least of the worries we might face in the years ahead.

Though the mathematical procedures leading to this conclusion are precise, given the data, there is a catch. Because of the limited experience we have had thus far with nuclear power the probabilities which show up on the answer line may be so distorted as to be meaningless.

To oversimplify, it is as though one flipped a coin three times, then developed a theory on how many times heads would appear in 1,000 flips, based on those three trials, modified by logic and mathematical experience. If, by chance, heads appeared three times in a row, we could come up with some weird conclusion as to what would happen in 1,000 tries.

In blunt terms, we do not have sufficient evidence as yet to determine the probability of nuclear accidents or their probable seriousness.

Take the recent highly publicized accident in which a workman, routinely lighting a candle to check on something set a serious fire at one nuclear plant. Since this occurred before the completion of the safety study, it was considered in the mathematics. But as one nuclear scientist in the regulatory agency said wonderingly, no one in a thousand years would have thought of a candle starting a fire in a nuclear plant. If it hadn't happened, it would most certainly not have been figured in.

How many other unpredictable accidents and combinations of accidents are likely to occur in this uncharted field no one knows.

The problems will show when there are not a hundred, but a thousand plants, operated routinely by men who have come to regard nuclear power, not as a new and untried source, but as a ho-hum, ordinary power source of no particular danger.

This is not to say we should slacken our drive for nuclear power. Opponents, notwithstanding, the evidence points to a most serious need. And though, as noted, the mathematics of this study do not prove it as safe as government propagandists claim, there is no evidence to date either to suggest seriously that nuclear power will be more dangerous than automobiles, swimming pools, airplanes or gas as a fuel, which we have come to accept in return for the benefits they offer.

Brezhnev mends Polish fences

WARSAW (LENS)—Leonid Brezhnev may not be in the best of health these days, but he traveled all the way to Warsaw last week in order to give the leader of Russia's biggest ally in Eastern Europe, Edward Gierek, a pat on the back at his party congress. Brezhnev's pay-off from the Polish leader was a warm tribute to Poland's Russian connection, coupled with his endorsement of the idea of a world Communist conference to uphold Russia's primacy in the world Communist movement.

The Russians have wanted this conference for some time but appear even keener on it now that their project for a European Communist conference has run into serious trouble owing to the opposition of important parties in Western Europe, plus Rumania and Yugoslavia. For good measure, Gierek also threw in a sharp attack on China.

The Polish people were told by Gierek and other Polish leaders last week that their living standards would go on rising but only if production costs go down and productivity goes up. "A flexible pricing policy" will replace the present price freeze on basic foodstuffs, but only after the government has had another good look at the economic facts and consulted the workers. Price increases will be phased in gradually, so as not to upset too many people.

Gierek has replaced nearly half of the Central committee (now enlarged from 115 to 140 members) with his supporters. This, and the dropping from both the central committee and the politburo of Franciszek Szlachcic, Gierek's erstwhile protégé and right-hand man, who apparently showed himself too pushy last year, are signs that the party leader wants to consolidate his power base in anticipation of troubles ahead.

Perhaps to strengthen their leader's hand against pressures from Russia and his own hard-liners, some 70 Polish intellectuals have protested against the planned changes in the Polish constitution, approved at the party congress, which are designed to emphasize the Communist party's leading role in society. Evidently the protesters fear that these formal changes could also mean a further erosion of the country's modest degree of cultural and religious freedom.

Voters accessories to public spending

A recent remark by Yale University president Kingman Brewster has been widely, and approvingly, quoted:

"Until we can devise ways by which the inflationary consequence of a congressman's vote is traced to him with the same particularity which attaches to a year or nay on a revenue bill, we will not cure the disease of public spending motivated by the desire to achieve re-election."

As with other statements of a similar nature, the implication is that politicians will do anything to get themselves re-elected. That goes without saying. Nobody will argue about that.

But again, what seems to be totally ignored is the fact that it takes two to tango in this matter. If the voters insist on rewarding the big spenders by returning them to office again and again, the voters are at least accessories after the fact.

To complain about inflationary government spending while ignoring the responsibility of the electorate in a democracy is like lamenting about the rise in automobile thefts and burglaries while ignoring the fact that criminals don't buy stolen goods from each other—they sell them to law-abiding citizens happy to make a good deal.

Brewster also seems to be saying, however, that voters are unable to see the connection between their congressman's vote on a particular issue and its effect on inflation, and until they can see the connection, spend and spend and elect and elect will continue to be the watchwords of politics.

This may be so, but in this regard the people are no different from the best economic minds in this country who cannot agree on what causes, or cures, inflation.

Be that as it may, it is time we recognized that the contempt so many Americans feel for politicians is a two-edged sword. If politicians will do anything to get elected or re-elected—well, who elects them and re-elects them?

Jet setter is devoted volunteer

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Donna J. Stone, a woman wealthy and attractive enough to mingle with the Jet Set, spends most of her time and a good bit of her wealth organizing volunteers against child abuse.

"You'd be surprised how many of us there are — full-time professional volunteers," said Ms. Stone with a laugh. "I guess I could be doing all sorts of things, flying around ... Instead, I'm overworked. I'd say, I sometimes put in 90 or 95 hours a week."

Ms. Stone, who prefers that title, is founder and president of the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, formed in 1972 and expanded to include volunteers in Illinois, Florida, Massachusetts, Texas and Kansas.

Besides serving as the National Committee's director and chief promoter, she helped it along with more than $500,000 of her money.

Why? Certainly not because of personal childhood trauma. Her father is a millionaire at least 350 times over: insurance magnate W. Clement Stone — philanthropist, friend and mold of presidents, a man whose own daughter says he never hit a kid in his life.

Stone's credo, "Positive Mental Attitude," is emblazoned on his daughter's office wall, and she is perhaps the second most vocal advocate of the idea, "You can do it if you think you can."

"I come from a very service-minded family," Ms. Stone said. "And I got involved quite young ... I see this as something I should be doing. I found, if I may be immodest, that I had a gift for administration."

In serving on the boards of a number of national service organizations, she realized the need for one dealing solely with child abuse.

Transfer works for partials

By Oswald & James Jacoby
When you first use the Jacoby transfer, don't bother with transfers to the minor suits. Just use these artificial responses to a notrump opening.

Two clubs — Stayman. Opener bids two of a four-card or longer major suit. Otherwise two diamonds.

Two diamonds. Transfer to hearts. Guarantees at least five hearts.

Two hearts, transfer to spades. Guarantees at least five spades.

One real advantage of the transfer bid is that you can transfer with a bad hand. Thus, North responds two hearts. South rebids two spades. He is annoyed when North drops him there, but is really delighted when play is over and he has made two spades right on the nose.

Without the transfer bid, North might still bid two spades and play the hand there, but

MISS DEBRA MAY

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — Once upon a winter dreary, the ladies who lunch shivered and flew South.

And Seventh Avenue designers, spotting a good thing, began creating resort lines for them. Lots of little white suits and linen dresses.

The ladies who lunch are still migrating, but while they're being catered to in first-class, a brown paperbag contingent of secretaries, teachers and young women executives is migrating with them in the tourist cabin, trying unsuccessfully to flag down a stewardess.

Those resort and cruise lines which are shown to the fashion press beginning in October have changed, too.

In fact, their very existence is up for grabs.

There's no such thing as a resort line, declares Designer One. It's simply spring clothing delivered to the stores in November, December and January.

No, no, that's not so, chirrup Designer Two. Resortwear has a certain uninhibitedness, a devil-may-care flamboyance you don't find in spring lines. Just look at those magenta harem pants and bra tops.

That's not the point, snaps Designer Three. We're in an era of seasonless dressing. People are either layering up or layering down for cold or hot weather. And they're dressing more casually.

"There's a little bit of truth in each statement," judges June Weir, vice president of fashion for Women's Wear Daily, the knowledgeable trade paper of the country's garment industry.

"The market in some areas is very prone to thinking in terms of getting an early indication of looks for summer and that in some measure accounts for resort lines.

"Due to seasonless fabrics such as ultrasuede, matte and cotton jerseys, there's much more seasonless dressing now. Whether you love Levi's or hate them, the fact is cotton denim does get worn all year 'round. While evening dresses and expensive at-home entertaining clothes are emphasized in designer resort lines, most of the clothes a woman wears during the day are casual."

They would have to be, because the resort woman considers herself a sports-woman. And that accounts for a trend which began in New York and, according to reports from buying offices and manufacturers, is rapidly becoming national. As one buyer put it, "If active departments aren't happening across the country now, they will be."

An "active" department is a centipede that grew out of the old, two-legged swimwear area.

"The whole concept of what a swimwear department should be has changed over the past couple of years," says Joseph Kaminsky, vice president of Eastern Region Sales for Sirena Swimwear.

"For one thing, it's becoming a twelve-month business. And we're now trying to cater to the total woman. An active department encompasses tenniswear, golfwear and leisurewear — pants, tops, skirts, etc. — sold as separates or as swimwear accessories.

"Today's woman, who has more time and money, wants to look good when she goes away in the winter. So she'll buy a matching caftan or poncho or long skirt to go with her bikini or unconstructed maillot. Matching accessories only sell well during the cruise season, as a matter of fact."

There is an incredible demand for bikinis nationally, he says, but that does not indicate a younger customer.

"It's true that younger women have more money now, but we do a very big business in large sizes because the mature woman wants to look and feel younger. She's partially responsible for the growth in the two-piece swimsuit category."

Marie Grant, group manager of misses better sportswear at New York's trend-setting Bloomingdale's agrees.

To a point.

"Women are body conscious and involved in active sports, or making an attempt at them. Today's older woman, therefore, is much more fit. That's why she wants a bikini. In New York, in fact, the customer is getting smaller. Emphasis has shifted severely from sizes 10, 12 and 14, to sizes 4, 6 and 8."

The customer who is attracted to the current resort line designed by Ronald Kolodzie for Concept VII, is defined by the company's president, Bob Miller. "My woman still flies South, but she probably has a smaller house and a meager staff. She doesn't need a little jacketed costume because she'll be at the pool or the tennis court, so she'll buy a great pair of pants or a great skirt, and a great shirt in pale gray cotton chambray, say, with a red tank top for accent. And to finish the costume, she'll throw on a matching lab coat or a smock jacket."

"Maybe she'll buy a little jumper that she can change by adding a tank top. Or a coral sundress or hot pink knitted baggy pants with a zippered polo shirt with short sleeves."

"For evening, she may choose a red crop tunic over a long oyster skirt or a print crepe de chine dress with a handkerchief hem."

"Ultimately, you see, what we've done is taken her ease in sportswear dressing and put it into other classifications for her."

For these classifications from a prestige designer collection, she'll be paying from $70 to $200, depending on the outfit. Smashing clothes to travel in, lounge in, and, if you're a woman who nibbles but isn't quite lunching yet, to wear while worrying about the bill.

WOMEN of all sizes take to the briefer swimsuit. Monika Tilley translates navy and white Rugby stripes into dashing beachwear from Elon. Bared halter bikini has striped zip terry robe for a T-shirt coverup look.

RESORT designs key what active women will wear when summer comes. Queen Casuals designed this simple print tank top with matching skirt and solid belted flair skirt in a washable chino knit.

Wife of 'quiet-aholic' needs counseling

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed letters from wife beaters, alcoholics and workaholics, but you have never printed a letter from the wife of a "quiet-aholic."

I'm talking about the man who truly cares for his family, provides a home for them, makes repairs around the house and replaces broken appliances. His only fault is his silence. His parents are aware of it and his children are aware of it. Some friends are aware of it. But most of all, I am aware of it. He is my husband.

I have resorted to begging, crying, screaming, even a trial separation. We went for counseling once, but according to him the counseling was useless. He refused to go back.

My stomach is upset and I get headaches. My oldest son now asks, "What is wrong with daddy? He never talks."

I'm tired of unanswered questions and silent evenings. I have two beautiful children for which I am very grateful. But is it wrong for me to want more out of this marriage? — Wedded To "A Clam With A Broken Hinge" (Your Phrase)

Dear Wedded: Since you are the one with the upset stomach and the headaches, I suggest solo counseling. Learn how (or if) you can open this man up. If he is hermetically sealed, decide whether or not you'd be better off without him. (I doubt it).

And for heaven's sake, surround yourself with chatty women and opportunities to verbalize in the daytime, or you'll wig out.

Dear Ann Landers: During my wife's first marriage she became pregnant by a man who was not her husband. Her husband may or may not have been aware of the affair. My wife was never sure. Legally, of course, the little girl was his.

As the child grew older she began to take on a striking resemblance to her real father. By that time my wife was divorced from her first husband so there was no scandal.

Seventeen years have passed. My wife hadn't heard one word from her daughter's daddy until today. He never so much as phoned to see how she was — even after he must have known of the divorce.

His phone call today shook us to pieces. The dirty rat announced that he is coming over to introduce himself as her real father, on her 18th birthday.

I blew my cork. Why should this jerk, after not contributing an ounce of parental love or financial support for 18 years, take an ego trip at the expense of a severe emotional trauma for both my wife and step-daughter?

My wife says, "Let the matter drop. He'll probably never show up." I want to confront him and tell him that if he does show up I will give him more grief than he can handle. I love my stepdaughter and don't want to see her hurt. Please advise. — Hot But Staying Cool

Dear Hot: Your wife gave you good advice. Take it. If you threaten the man or do him bodily harm, the law will be on his side.

Legally, the girl's father is the man to whom her mother was married when she was born. Moreover, he may in actuality be her father, in spite of the "striking resemblance." Nature plays funny tricks. So cool it, Dad, and stick to that story come hell or high water.

Confidential to What Do You Think Of My New-Found Soul-Mate? Perfect! Nothing unites people like bad taste. I'm sure you two will get along beautifully.

EYEBROW TIP

Try to maintain as natural a look as possible with your eyebrows. You can improve the arc by tweezing. Avoid attempting to turn straight eyebrows into something they're not.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Illinois contribution to architectural revolution

By C. G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Since Illinois did not exist at the time of the Revolution against the British, it's going to celebrate the revolution that did occur in the state—the architectural one.

"Illinois architecture has changed the face of the world," says Bruce Sagan, chairman of the Illinois Arts Council.

"No city or nation in the world looks the same as it did 100 years ago because of Illinois' contribution," he said in an interview.

The arts council is co-sponsoring with the Illinois Bicentennial Commission and other agencies a statewide observance called "Illinois Architecture: An Illinois Bicentennial Celebration."

During 1976 a number of events and activities will commemorate not only this contribution but the architecture of Illinois court houses as well. "The Revolution took place on the East Coast and there's nothing much we can do," said Sagan, explaining the state's dilemma in trying to find something the state has contributed which has been "important to the life of the nation."

The so-called "Chicago school" of architecture at the end of the last century and the beginning of the 20th made contributions which changed building technology and design, he pointed out.

And there were further contributions in the building of bungalows and the design of suburbs and parks, he added.

"Today, Chicago is still architecturally the most dynamic city in the world," Sagan said.

The skyscraper was born in Chicago when William Le Baron Jenney designed the 10-story Home Insurance Building, erected in 1894.

That was the first fireproof steel skeleton building. Previously, iron and stone were the major materials for big buildings.

But iron and cast iron would not withstand fires, and the height to which stone buildings could be erected was limited.

Other innovations in Chicago which contributed to the growth of the skyscraper included building on pilings and later on caissons.

The growth of the "Chicago school" followed Jenney. These architects tried to break away from classical, historical styles and used wide glass windows and narrow strips of masonry to cover the metal to cover the metal frameworks of their buildings.

But these often were decorated with columns, scrolls and other traditional ornaments.

Louis Sullivan was a leader of the school, and Carson, Pirie Scott & Co., a department store, still stands on State Street as an example of his work.

In the 1930s, Chicago in effect imported what it had exported when leaders of the Bauhaus School in Germany, notably Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, came to Chicago to work and elaborate the architectural ideas developed there.

Mies' work is remarkable for its stark simplicity, often using black-tinted glass. His glass-and-steel apartment buildings on Lake Shore Drive stand as an example of his design.

Much recent architecture in Chicago and elsewhere still has a Miesian character, such as the John Hancock Center, even though the architect has been dead since 1969.

Frank Lloyd Wright, too, is among the leading names in Chicago architecture. He is remembered primarily as founder of the "prairie school" in which houses were designed to fit their surroundings.

His houses had a long, low, fluid look, like the sweep of the Midwest prairie.

It was Wright and his followers who opened up houses, combining dining rooms with living rooms, so that rooms flowed into one another without being connected boxes.

Frederick Law Olmsted Jr., an Eastern architect, designed the Chicago suburb of Riverside, with its curving streets, which was to influence of the design of most post-World War II suburban developments.

Low-cost housing was made possible with development of the "balloon frame" or stud-wall houses somewhere in the Middle West in the 1830s. This made possible the use of lighter weight materials which were cheaper than the stone and heavy timber which had been necessary until then.

Twelve Illinois court houses designed along the lines of European architecture will be featured in the Illinois bicentennial celebration, as will Victorian houses in Quincy and Adams county.

Court houses to be represented are those from these counties: DeKalb, Putnam, Henry, Mercer, Hancock, Scott, Pike, Macoupin, Effingham, Johnson, Pope and McLean.

Terra cotta ornamentation, including examples from Aurora and DeKalb, as well as Chicago, also will be shown.

Features in the statewide celebration will be an "Archi-Van," a 40-foot mobile van museum containing photographs, models, artifacts and other exhibits about the state's architecture.

The van will be inaugurated in Champaign in conjunction with an exhibit at the Champaign County Historical Museum and will then travel to schools, fairs, shopping centers and other places.

As part of this program, a 16-page newspaper will be distributed in each of 10 regions of the state describing important buildings of the area and how to preserve them.

"The way we've built our buildings is a very important part of our cultural heritage and we ought to think about preserving them," Sagan said.

An "ArchiCenter" will be set up in Chicago's Loop as a center for architectural exhibits, information and tours to the city's important architectural sites, as well as to suburban Pullman, a historic planned community.

An exhibition of Chicago architecture shown in Germany a few years ago will be brought to the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago, and another exhibit showing more recent buildings will be shown in the nearby Time-Life Building.

Two films about Illinois architecture are being prepared for showing to schools and civic groups throughout the state. Plans also call for two architects to take up residence to work with students at two high schools, yet to be selected.

Faculty members at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, are developing "mini courses" in architecture to be made available for inclusion in social science curricula in schools throughout the state.

The entire program is to cost about $750,000, with contributions from two major co-sponsors, the Bureau of Economic Development and the Department of Conservation, as well as the federal government.

Sagan said "the cultural heritage that we have given the world" has a lasting value. "We hope the celebration will not be just one-shot fireworks on the Fourth of July 1976," he said.

The sponsors hope that by drawing attention to Illinois' architectural contribution people will become interested in preserving important aspects of this contribution, Sagan said.

Capture clears up SLA mystery

Escaped convict cleared of any crime connections

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer
VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — When escaped convict Thero Wheeler was identified as a prime suspect in Patricia Hearst's kidnapping, electronics technician Bradley Bruce says he read it in the Houston, Tex., newspapers.

Weeks later, when Wheeler's body was believed to be among six in a charred Symbionese Liberation Army hideout, Bradley Bruce says he was home watching on television.

Thero Wheeler and Bradley Bruce are the same man.

"Everybody said I started the SLA, I kidnaped Patricia Hearst and all kinds of things like that," says Wheeler, who was apprehended in July after nearly two years in flight. "But I can prove I was nowhere around."

In a recent prison interview, Wheeler insisted his only real link to the SLA was its unsuccessful attempt to recruit him after his escape. And the FBI says now that the 30-year-old inmate is not wanted in connection with any SLA crimes.

Yet his story reveals much about early SLA frustrations, as well as fugitive survival techniques.

The story began in 1973 at the California Medical Facility here, where Wheeler and SLA founder Donald DeFreeze met through the Black Cultural Association, an inmate organization formed to instill black pride.

Six months after DeFreeze was transferred to Soledad Prison and escaped, Wheeler slipped away from a work detail here with aid from "well-connected" radical friends. Although he was within three weeks of a parole hearing, he says he escaped to get proper medical treatment for painful intestinal inflammation.

But the radicals who put him in touch with the infant SLA were unable to get him care in the San Francisco Bay area because he was too "hot," so Wheeler traveled cross-country by train — which he considered safer than plane or car. He finally got medication in New York and Chicago.

"You don't have to be a Weatherman to hide in the underground," he said. "You've got doctors who if you tell them: 'Hey man, I got a problem,' they're going to help you. Some of the people I had to seek out weren't members of the underground, and weren't members of organizations. But they were human beings." Returning to the Bay area in fall of 1973, he found the SLA armed but not an army. DeFreeze, surrounded by several allies, was failing miserably in efforts to recruit from the radical community.

In an effort to take him under wing, the fledgling SLA wrote a letter threatening the author of a newspaper article that had branded Wheeler an active member of another radical organization, the failing Venceremos group. The letter warned that Wheeler was under the protection of the "people's forces."

"I told him (DeFreeze), 'Hold it man. Nobody's writing a letter for me. You're doing nothing for me. Don't mention my name. Period. If you write a letter telling that you're protecting me, then I'm writing a letter telling you're a liar.'"

After the SLA confronted him at gunpoint and robbed $600 from his girlfriend, former Venceremos medical clinic worker Mary Alice Siem, Wheeler decided to leave the area. Looking for medical treatment, he said he fled to his birthplace, Houston, Tex. With guidance from radical friends, he set up his false identity of Bradley Bruce.

Wheeler hints that he used a method employed by the SLA and other underground groups, building a paper history by applying for various identification cards in the name of a dead person his approximate age.

Using his new identity, he underwent two stomach operations in Houston and looked for work.

Wheeler, raised in San Francisco's predominantly black Fillmore-Western Addition areas, had been in prison for all but about three years since convicted of a robbery at 17. But drawing on electronics and electricity skills learned in prison, he secured jobs with an electric motor company and a burglar alarm firm.

Meanwhile, the SLA alienated much of the radical community by killing Oakland's first black schools superintendent, Marcus Frster, on Nov. 6, 1973. At the time, some investigators believed Wheeler was an SLA member and might have fired some of the fatal cyanide bullets.

After several SLA members raided Miss Hearst's Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974, Wheeler's mug shot and name soon were printed and broadcast around the country. He was falsely identified as a participant, apparently on the basis of faulty eyewitness reports and his past contact with DeFreeze.

"When people were reporting that ... I kidnaped Patricia Hearst, I was in Houston re-winding a 75 horsepower electric motor," Wheeler said. "They had my picture on the front page of the Houston Post and Houston Chronicle. I went home from work and stayed in the house. For about three weeks, I drove my car straight home from work, then I started going back out."

No one recognized Wheeler. He had become Bradley Bruce, a reticent but easy smiling technician who worked regularly and enjoyed a small circle of apolitical friends. He said he paid his income taxes and even got his rebate check.

"I kicked back and was a regular citizen. I got me an apartment, and me and my woman did our thing," he recalled. "She went to work and I went to work, and we got everything we wanted. She didn't even know my real name."

When six SLA members died in a fiery May 1974 shootout with Los Angeles police, it was speculated that Wheeler might be among them.

"I saw it a couple of hours later on the television news," he recalled. "They showed 30 or 40 minutes of it. That choked me out. It didn't seem real. All those lives wasted."

While the FBI intensified a nationwide search for SLA fugitives, Wheeler went on living a cautious life. A low profile was the key.

Last February, the roots of Bradley Bruce went deeper. The woman he was living with gave birth to their daughter, still without knowing his real name.

"I was still at the point where I couldn't trust anyone," he said.

But in July, despite his precautions, Wheeler's cover was blown by one of those chance occurrences all fugitives fear. He was shot while interceding in a dispute.

When he sought hospital treatment, his alias was fed into a computer and the FBI arrested him. Wheeler figures the FBI had learned his alias indirectly from one of a few former radical acquaintances who knew about his cover and had inadvertently let it leak.

"When I got arrested," he said, "the FBI took me into a room and one agent told me, 'I'd do anything to get Patricia Hearst. You tell me where she is, and I'll help you.'"

Wheeler said the FBI lost interest when it determined he was a thousand miles away during the SLA's exploits. He was returned to California to face escape charges and to continue serving a sentence for battery on a police officer.

Tolls bells hourly

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer
LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — When the six-ton bronze bell finished tolling midnight, Willy Annen stepped out of his wooden cubicle in the windswept belfry of Lausanne's ancient cathedral.

"C'est le guet — this is the watchman," he shouted into the wintry darkness. "It struck twelve." Below, a handful of people, headed home from a bottle of wine in an old town bistro, stopped to listen.

Calling the hours from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. from the gothic tower is the same every night for Annen, whose job may be unique in Europe today. It has been the same for scores of his predecessors performing the lofty function for at least six centuries.

Annen's "home" is a tiny, woodpannelled cell 158 steps up from street level right between the two huge bells and below five others.

"I am living amid 25 tons of bells but I manage to sleep well," the burly 54-year-old bachelor says.

There is a bed, a bench, a radio, a telephone and an alarm clock. There are a few picture postcards tacked to the wall and a calendar advertising the brewery for which he works at daytime as a truck driver. The alarm wakes him up five minutes before the hour.

When he calls a particular hour, Annen resets the alarm for an hour later. He claims he immediately falls fast asleep again for 50 minutes. "It takes me a maximum of three minutes to doze off," he explains. "I have found my own rhythm of sleeping and I don't mind."

No one calls the hours during the day until Annen comes to work at 10 p.m.

A purist, Annen sends his deep-throated bass voice through cone-shaped hands rather than through the metal megaphone used by previous watchmen. Depending on wind conditions, he can be heard up to almost a mile away.

Only once, last summer, was he forced to skip a night after a rainstorm of near hurricane force flooded his cubicle. But as soon as the roof leak was repaired he was back, joined by a couple of friends to celebrate the event with a few glasses of wine.

Annen took over as watchman 15 years ago, drawing the equivalent of $4.50 a night. At one time, an economy minded city official proposed dropping the post as the watchman's principal task — spotting fires — had long ago been outmoded.

This stirred a successful protest from tradition-minded residents. City hall yielded and even named Annen a municipal employee with fringe benefits and pension rights. He now draws the equivalent of $370 a year from the city in addition to his pay for his daytime work.

Cholestrol fuss has lowered the heart attack rate

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—I wish you would comment on the enclosed column by a man who claims the theory that you should limit your cholesterol intake is all bunk. Note he eats as many as two dozen eggs a week, drinks a quart of milk a day, avoids low cholesterol foods and still has a very low cholesterol level. Is he right and, if so, why can't all of us eat a high cholesterol diet?

DEAR READER—The column you sent me does a disservice to the public. The man evidently is not a scientist nor a physician and has used his own case to try to disprove the work done on literally thousands of people by well trained scientists. One case of anything doesn't prove very much and the poorest example of all is your own case.

He is wrong when he asks why the nation's heart attack rate hasn't decreased with the "nationwide near hysteria over lowering cholesterol." If he were better informed he would know that it has. It would probably decrease even further if more people quit smoking, remained physically active, eliminated or avoided obesity and avoided excess intake of high-fat high-cholesterol foods.

He is right in assuming that hereditary factors are important. We know perfectly well that some people can eat high-fat, high-cholesterol diets and not have high blood cholesterol levels. These individuals inherit a different body chemistry than the rest of the population. Some racial groups such as the Masai are good examples of hereditary protection against high cholesterol and its complications of heart disease. Also most women in their childbearing age span have low blood cholesterol levels despite what they eat. He is certainly not a trailblazer with that news.

Finally, he is in his mid 30s and tells us nothing about his level of physical conditioning, how much he exercises or whether he is fat or lean.

The point that high cholesterol levels may be caused by your genes is no argument at all for ignoring its significance any more than one with diabetes should ignore diet because diabetes is hereditary.

The simple facts are that people who do have high cholesterol levels can often lower them through dietary means, which includes limiting calories to correct or eliminate obesity, fat, saturated fat and cholesterol. If the writer had ever treated patients with these problems he would have had a broad enough experience to have made a more balanced presentation to the public. On a case basis those of us who have seen what diet does to people with high cholesterol levels know that diet is an important factor in treating such people.

These patients with high cholesterol levels are different animals than the young columnist who has an experience level of one case.

Young women, children and those with normal cholesterol levels need not be so restrictive with their diet. But such individuals need regular checks to be sure the cholesterol level remains normal. Perhaps when the young writer is in his mid 40s, if he doesn't keep his weight down, he will need to change his life style—if he still has the chance.

Since taxation was one of the main reasons for the Revolution, Congress was in no position to tax the independent states to finance the Revolution. Continental currency and state paper money were issued but they were worth little more than the paper they were printed on. Early on it became necessary to resort to loans, chiefly from foreign sources, to finance the war. These loans, primarily from the French and Spanish governments, and from private Dutch bankers, amounted to about $7,830,000. The World Almanac notes.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-669: Dr. W. Irving Granville is a phenomenal person.

"Dr. Crane," he once told me, "I was a New York City banker when Dr. Norman Vincent Peale and his wife launched their inspiring inner-faith monthly magazine called 'Guideposts.'"

"But it was floundering at the start so Dr. Peale asked me if I could take over the job of trying to build up its circulation. I told him to let me pray about the matter for a week and I'd then give him my answer."

"So I came to the conclusion that inspiring millions of teenagers and harassed couples into adopting a calmer more moral life style, was a very worthy project."

"That's when I quit being a banker and became a magazine salesman!"

"At Pittsburgh, for example, I called on Branch Rickey and asked him how long it had been since the Pirates had won a pennant."

"He shook his head and told me it had been about 30 years."

"So I suggested if he'd have Guideposts sent to the homes of all of the players, the inspiring articles therein would reduce much tension and family feuding, both among the children as well as the married couples."

"And I assured him that I thus felt his Pittsburgh Pirates would probably win the pennant within a few years."

"Mr. Rickey nodded assent and told me to put him down for 400 subscriptions, to cover the Pirates and all their various farm teams."

"Dr. Crane, five years later they won the pennant."

"Mr. Rickey then invited me to come down and be a guest in his box for he felt I had been quite instrumental in changing the morale of his players and thus helping them win the pennant."

"But my largest single order was from a top executive of the local steel mills."

"He signed up for 105,000 annual subscriptions for all the employees of their Pittsburgh plant and outlying branches!"

"Once I called on the head of a cigarette firm in the Carolinas."

"He proffered me a cigarette but I politely declined saying I didn't smoke."

"But I reassured him that if I ever did start the habit, I'd stick to his brand."

"He laughed and said he had never smoked, either, till he was made the president of the company, but then felt it would look bad if he failed to use his own product."

"And he signed up for something like 37,000 subscriptions, too."

"As I'd drive across the country, I would also pin poems on the sun visor of my car and then memorize them as I went along."

"Since I have also been a Rotarian most of my adult life, I attended a Rotary luncheon while in Pittsburgh."

"The president introduced me to one of their members, saying the latter had a 100 per cent record of luncheon attendance for the past year."

"Dr. Crane, you know I enjoy competition, so I resolved to set a 200 per cent record."

"Since Rotary meets on different days of the week, I'd attend a luncheon on one day in Dallas, then another in Houston or Fort Worth, etc."

"So I accumulated a record of 130 Rotary luncheons in one year, thus setting a 250 record."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Hurt as car hits culvert

OREGON — A rural Byron girl was injured Tuesday when the car she was driving left Ill. 72 and slammed into a cement culvert. Taken to Rockford Memorial Hospital for treatment was Mary L. Kunkel, 18, Rt. 1 Byron. Kunkel walked from the accident scene to a nearby house to call for an ambulance. Ogle County Sheriff's Deputies were called to investigate a report of a car in a ditch. Deputies spotted the car but were unable to locate the driver until they were notified of a Byron ambulance call nearby. Kunkel reportedly drove her car off the highway on the south side, where it struck the culvert and two reflector posts before coming to rest. The accident remains under investigation. Kunkel was released from the hospital following treatment.

Mt. Carroll driver accused

Lee County Sheriff's Deputies arrested a Mt. Carroll man early this morning and charged him with driving while intoxicated. Thomas G. Pociucha, 30, was picked up while driving on Ill. 38, east of Dixon. He was being held in the Lee County jail pending a court appearance.

Arrested in Danville

OREGON — Gary L. Horton, 28, Olivet, was returned to Ogle County Tuesday to face a charge of revocation of probation. Horton was being held at the Public Safety Building under $5,000 bond, following his arrest in Danville by Vermilion County authorities. An Ogle County warrant was issued against Horton after he failed to report to the probation office and failed to make restitution from a theft charge. He was granted probation on the theft conviction in 1973. Horton was scheduled to appear before Associate Judge Alan Cargerman today.

Okay payment to engineers

WEST BROOKLYN — The board approved payment of $1,000 to Driver and Simmons, consulting engineers at the regular meeting of the West Brooklyn Village Board meeting Tuesday night. The payment to the company was made for the work on the village's water main project. The board set a special meeting Jan. 13 at the Fire Station for the purpose of updating the village ordinances. In final action, the board discussed a Bicentennial Village picnic but no definite date was selected.

REAGAN IN ROCKFORD — For the first time since announcing his candidacy for President of the United States, Ronald Reagan will be in northwestern Illinois. He will be in Rockford on Monday for a public rally in the Coronado Theatre at 8 p.m. Reagan is scheduled to arrive earlier and to confer with GOP National Convention candidates.

Walker will 'smoke out' Howlett on personal finances

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker declared today that he would "smoke out" his Democratic primary opponent, Michael J. Howlett, on the issue of personal income disclosure. Walker said at a news conference that he will once again disclose his income tax returns as well as his assets, debts and net worth because "this is what the voters really want to know."

The governor criticized Howlett, the Illinois secretary of state, for having "been on the public payroll for 15 years" without revealing details of his personal finances. Walker cited a statement by Howlett in 1972 that he would be willing to disclose his finances but did not believe public officials should be forced to do so. "Howlett did not make disclosure in 1972 or at any other time," Walker said. "The voters are getting double talk from Howlett. He must be and will be smoked out on this and on other issues in the campaign."

The governor said, however, that he still will not make public the sources of his campaign funds in his 1972 race. He said businessmen who contributed to him at that time still might face retaliation from the regular party for doing so.

Social Security visits to Oregon center planned

OREGON — A representative from the Social Security administration will be at the Yellow Bird Drop-In Center the first Thursday of each month from 1 to 3 p.m. According to representatives of Oregon Senior Citizens, Inc., the representative will be able to answer questions which senior citizens may have about Social Security. The first 1976 visit to Oregon will be Thursday, 1 to 3 p.m., in the back room of the center, which is located south of the Ogle County National Bank on Fourth Street.

Nabbed on check charge

Debra Willstead, 20, 1334 Long Ave., was picked up by Dixon Police officers Tuesday afternoon after a warrant had been issued for her arrest. The warrant was issued when Willstead failed to make a scheduled appearance in circuit court Jan. 5. She had been originally charged with theft by deception in connection with a bogus $15 check issued to Schmitt's Sunoco on Aug. 25. Prior to her failure to appear in court Monday, Willstead had pleaded not guilty to the charge. She was released on bond with a new court date set for Jan. 28.

Deaths, Funerals

Carroll Lahman

FRANKLIN GROVE — Carroll P. Lahman, 78, Franklin Grove, died Tuesday at his home in Franklin Grove.

He was born Nov. 1, 1897, at Franklin Grove, the son of Fremont and Minnie (Pollock) Lahman, and was married to the former Hazel Robinson Sept. 1, 1923, at Worcester, Mass. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he spent most of his life teaching college. Beginning at Drake University in Iowa, for 18 years he was debate coach at Western Michigan University, with later position at Albion College (Mich.), Pasadena College (Calif.), the University of Colorado, and Manchester College (Ind.). He was author or co-author of several books and for two years was vice president of the National Association of Teachers of Speech. Along with his late wife he was a long-time member of NAACP, Fellowship of Reconciliation, American Civil Liberties Union and United Nations Association. In 1940 he was Prohibition Party candidate for the United States Senate in Michigan. After his retirement from teaching, he was active in the work of CROP in Lee County. He was a member and former moderator of Franklin Grove Church of the Brethren.

His wife preceded him in death, by one month.

Survivors include a son, Robin, Franklin Grove; a daughter, Mrs. Jonathan (Ruth) Adame, S. Pasadena, Calif.; and four grandchildren.

Burial, after cremation, will be in Franklin Grove Cemetery. There will be a memorial service Saturday at 2 p.m., with Rev. Robert Roller officiating. There will be no visitation.

A memorial has been established for Deafness Research Foundation.

Funds for project approved

AMBOY — Third Ward Alderman Lester Kellen was named to preside at the brief session of the City Council Tuesday night in the absence of Mayor Kenneth McCracken. Council members approved a resolution to spend $900 from the general account as the city's share of a project to install guard rails on various streets. The project will cost $9,000 and will be 90 per cent funded by a state grant. Bills were approved for payment in the following amounts: $7,362.26 from general account; $17,748.42, from the water operation fund; (of this amount $15,182 was for repairs on city water well No. 2); $11,426.25, sewer bond payment from sewer tax account; $461, from sewer operating account and $11,558 to Willett Hofmann and Associates for engineering fees on plans for renovation of the sewerage treatment facility; $1,850 to E. M. Sullivan for legal services.

CB radio theft is reported

The theft of a Citizen's Band radio from the parking lot of Plum Hollow Bowling Alley was reported to Lee County Sheriff's Deputies Tuesday night. Alvin Sheely, Polo, told deputies that the 23-channel radio was removed from his vehicle earlier that evening.

Federal judge removed from case for bias

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A federal judge ordered removed from the nation's biggest anti-pollution case for taking sides says he did his best "to provide for the maximum protection of the public health."

U.S. District Court Judge Miles W. Lord acknowledged Tuesday's order from the U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals lifting his jurisdiction over the Reserve Mining Co. case, but no more.

Lord, the appeals court said from St. Louis, "seems to have shed the robe of the judge and assumed the mantle of the advocate" in the lengthy pollution case.

"I have done my best to provide for the maximum protection of the public health consistent with due process to all concerned," the judge said in a brief statement issued by aides. "As of today, I can do no more. I am hopeful that the next judge will be given the power and support necessary to protect the public health and the environment in which we live."

"That's all I'll say today," the smiling, 55-year-old judge told reporters who gathered in his chambers here.

Reserve Mining, which discharges 67,000 tons of waste rock daily into Lake Superior from its Silver Bay, Minn., taconite plant, complained to the appeals court last month that Lord was no longer acting impartially in the case.

The complaint came after Lord, once Minnesota's attorney general, ordered Reserve to pay $100,000 to continue filtration of the municipal water supply at Duluth, Minn., and other communities along the North Shore of Lake Superior.

The 16-page appeals court ruling referred to "obvious impropriety" in Lord's order requiring Reserve to deposit the money "without proper notice and hearing." The court said it was dissolving the district court order and returning the $100,000 deposit to Reserve.

Don Wright, Reserve's director of communications, declined comment on the appeal court's decision.

"We haven't seen it and we won't comment until we've seen it," he said. "It would be very inappropriate to say anything until we see the judges' order."

The appeals court directed the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to "adequately filter drinking water and furnish safe drinking water for the relevant communities on the North Shore of Minnesota" and asked the district court to determine what amounts Reserve must pay for the costs of pollution abatement.

Because of Lord's actions, the appeals court said, the district court "thus becomes lawyer, witness and judge in the same proceeding, and abandons the greatest virtue of a fair and conscientious judge — impartiality."

The dispute over the Silver Bay plant has been in the courts for four years. After a nine-month trial in 1973-74, Lord ordered the plant closed. He found a health hazard resulted from asbestos fibers some witnesses said came into the lake with the taconite tailings dumped by Reserve.

In the district court case brought by officials of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and some environmental groups, some government witnesses suggested that cancer might be caused by the discharge of asbestos-like fibers into the air at Silver Bay and into Lake Superior.

In an earlier ruling, the appeals court said the discharges posed a danger to the public health but said its study of the record showed "only speculative and conjectural evidence of an imminent health hazard from the discharges into the water."

The court at that time reversed Lord's order closing Reserve's plant and ordered immediate filtration of the water, immediate measures to reduce air and water pollution and complete abatement within a "reasonable" time.

The plant had closed for one day.

Lord justified his order that Reserve pay for filtration by presenting evidence given in November by Dr. Arnold Brown, a Mayo Clinic pathologist from Rochester, Minn., and Dr. William Nicholson of the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine at New York City.

"At least in the air, it's 10 times as dangerous as they said it was," the judge said.

Birdseed robbery is puzzle to authorities

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Federal authorities are scratching their heads over how to charge a man who held up a bank and demanded birdseed — a lot of birdseed.

Miklos Petrovicks, 40, was taken into custody by FBI agents Tuesday without violence after an incident in which he allegedly held the manager of a Bank of America branch in a shopping center in this Los Angeles suburb hostage for nearly two hours.

After the incident, bank manager Joe Ferguson said, "He wanted birdseed."

"He said pollution was killing his birds.... Birds were falling from the sky.... We should take care of his birds."

The man also urged that "we should all go down to the seashore and cleanse ourselves," the bank manager said. "He said he had done it several times himself, but that it was very cold."

The 40-year-old bank manager said Petrovicks came into the bank at about 2 p.m. and jammed a gun into his ribs.

The man ordered Ferguson to have all the bank employees and customers leave the building and demanded that Ferguson call all branches of the Bank of America — the nation's largest commercial bank with more than 1,000 offices in California — and "have each of them send a truckload of birdseed to this branch."

Ferguson said he called one branch requesting birdseed and then called police with Petrovicks' permission.

The man spoke on the telephone for nearly 30 minutes with FBI agent John Hall, who then came to the scene.

After Hall and Petrovicks had spoken again, the agent entered the bank at about 3:40 p.m. They agreed to meet unarmed at the front door.

As Hall entered the bank, police rushed in and captured Petrovicks. Authorities said he joked with officers as they handcuffed him.

Phillip Stone, special agent with the Culver City police, said Petrovicks directed him to a .38-caliber revolver he said he placed in a desk drawer after taking Ferguson hostage.

Because Petrovicks did not demand money, federal authorities were not certain what charges would be filed.

"The U.S. attorney will check on bank robbery charges but there will at least be other violations," FBI Special Agent Elmer Lindberg said.

Then again, since he disrupted operations of the bank, Lindberg said, Petrovicks might be charged with interfering with commerce.

Later Tuesday night, Culver City authorities booked Petrovicks for investigation of robbery, but federal authorities had yet to decide what to do.

Filing opens for delegate candidates

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The scramble for delegate positions to this summer's presidential nominating conventions began today with the opening of an eight-day filing period for candidates.

The delegate elections promise to be an interesting sidelight to the state primary races this spring.

The Republican delegate contests will feature a battle between the backers of President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who are seeking the GOP presidential nomination.

The Democratic delegate elections could involve the supporters of as many as four announced presidential candidates and three persons who say they are not seeking that office.

The four, entered in the non-binding presidential preference election which also will be held March 16, are Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and one-time vice presidential candidate R. Sargent Shriver.

State law permits candidates to run in the preference primary without participating in the delegate races. It also allows delegates to run committed to persons not entered in the preference primary.

The three who may have delegates committed to them are Gov. Daniel Walker and Sens. Adlai E. Stevenson III of Illinois and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

Walker has pledged to support candidates for delegate seats who oppose those of the party organization.

His aides say this could result in the governor backing persons who either declare him as their preference for president, who run committed to another candidate against party organization candidates or who declare themselves uncommitted.

State Democratic Chairman John Touhy has encouraged local party organization leaders to field states of candidates committed to Stevenson, who has said he is not running for president.

Delegate filing ends Jan. 14. Democrats will elect 155 delegates and 72 alternates. Republican voters will pick 96 delegates and 96 alternates in the primary.

Candidates must complete a form listing a preference for the presidential nomination, if any, or a desire to run uncommitted. But state laws do not require that a delegate who listed a preference for a particular candidate vote for him at the nominating convention.

Democratic presidential hopefuls usually avoid delegate fights with candidates from seven congressional districts which include parts of Chicago and are influenced strongly by Mayor Richard J. Daley.

But a Wallace spokesman said Tuesday that "tentative, full slates" of Wallace delegates have been drawn up for 23 of the state's 24 congressional districts. He didn't name the district with a partial slate because "we may have that filled before filing ends."

Carter announced in a statement that 74 delegates and 21 alternates pledged to him planned to file Wednesday, including some candidates from the 9th District on Chicago's North Side.

Harris' supporters say candidates pledged to the senator will file in three districts which include parts of Chicago.

Petitions also have been circulated in three downstate districts for candidates who say they are committed to Humphrey.

Republicans will elect four delegates and four alternates in each congressional district and five delegates and five alternates will be picked at-large at a party convention later this year.

Democrats will elect a varying number of delegates and alternates in congressional districts and will select 14 delegates and 11 alternates at-large in a party convention.

Fund pinch for racing board

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Racing Board is almost broke and Illinois racetracks may be shutdown Jan. 19 if the legislature doesn't appropriate funds, a board official said.

Executive secretary William Masterson said the board lacks funds to pay some employees and will hold a special session Jan. 17 to decide whether to award further 1976 racing dates to any of the state's tracks.

"We are now defunct," Masterson said, and unless the Illinois legislature appropriates $1.2 million to operate through June, the board will be unable to meet its Jan. 25 payroll of 95 employees throughout the state.

Chairman Anthony Scariano said the pay "will be made up when we get the money. They are loyal employees and are staying on even though they will miss one of their two pay periods this month."

He said House Speaker William A. Redmond, D-Bensenville, and Senate Minority Leader William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, have promised to press for speedy approval of funds for the board when the legislature reconvenes Jan. 14. Scariano added that the stage was set for the current financial crisis when the 1975 legislature failed to pass the board's appropriation bill.

Some sources said the failure of the legislature to pass the board's appropriation bill was related to the board's ruling that racetrack interests can't contribute to political campaigns and also to the failure to end discrimination in the racing industry.

The board last month allocated racing dates only for the month of January, rather than for a year, because of lack of funds.

Masterson said a decision will be made on Jan. 14 whether to shut down three currently operating tracks—Cahokia Downs in East St. Louis, Balmoral Park in Crete and Aurora Downs in Aurora—effective Jan. 19 unless more money is appropriated.

A spokesman for State Comptroller George W. Lindberg said that as of Monday there was only $13,970 in the racing board's personal services fund for full-time and per diem administrative employees and only $22,000 left in the personal service fund for the board's laboratory employees.

Scariano said there is no sentiment on the board currently to allocate three years of racing dates as the new State Racing Act permits.

"We want to see how winter racing does in Cook County this year, especially winter thoroughbred racing," Scariano said. "Then we will be ready to allocate three-year dates."

He said the board has received no requests for Sunday racing dates. Under the new act, a community's residents must approve Sunday racing in a referendum before such dates could be allocated.

To marry man sent to prison

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — "Time has a way of passing, if you think of it day by day, it just passes," said Charlotte Adams, as she prepared to marry a man sentenced to serve up to 16 years in prison for murder.

Miss Adams, 34, says that "just basically I'll take it a day at a time, trying not to think what's going to happen next month or next week."

"I love him and I feel he is worth waiting for," the groom, Charles Pearl, 32, of Galesburg, sat in the Knox County jail, after getting a 14-to-16-year prison sentence Monday from Judge U. S. Collins of Circuit Court. But Collins stayed Pearl's transfer to prison for five days so the couple could marry.

Pearl pleaded guilty to fatally shooting another man last September in a tavern. Miss Adams recalls how, after the shooting, Pearl told her he had shot a man.

The couple had been planning to marry Dec. 9 and move to Arizona. Their world collapsed, she said.

"Oh dear God, I can't say it was panic I felt, it was just numbness," she said. "I didn't feel anything. I just sat there."

Miss Adams and Pearl had their blood tests Tuesday and hoped to get their marriage license and be married at the jail today. The ceremony was to be conducted by a Baptist minister.

Miss Adams was well aware that after it was over there would be no honeymoon of any kind.

"We have been living together, and we feel (the marriage) has already been consummated," she said. "We loved each other before this, we felt married before anyway."

Miss Adams said she and Pearl knew each other as children. They met again about three years ago after he returned from 10 years in prison on another murder charge, she said. They were engaged a year later.

Miss Adams said Pearl's attorney told her it would be more than eight years before Pearl is eligible for parole.

"If I were 24 I probably wouldn't do it," she said. "There would be too much possibility to love someone else before he came back."

"But I'm 34, and 10 years can make a lot of difference in how permanent something can be," she said.

"I've learned even since yesterday to accept these years I know he's going to be gone," she said. "But when you do something you shouldn't be doing, you have to pay for this crime."

"I know this and he knows this."

Borchers ruled off ballot

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A panel of five Circuit Court judges has ruled that former State Rep. A. Webster Borchers' name may not appear on the March 16 Illinois primary ballot for state senator.

The conservative Decatur Republican was convicted in November of misusing legislative expense funds. Objections to his candidacy for a Senate seat were filed later with the Illinois Board of Elections.

After his conviction, Borchers, 69, voluntarily gave up his House seat when Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott issued an opinion saying he felt Borchers had forfeited the seat upon conviction.

Scott said his opinion was not legally binding but Borchers did not contest it.

The panel of judges which issued Tuesday's ruling included Donald Morthland, Decatur; James Watson, Toledo; Bill J. Slater, Pana; Robert J. Sanders, Taylorville, and William Conway of Sangamon County.

Scott opinion on liquor

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A private school or church may hold a retail liquor license but may not sell liquor in or within 100 feet of its own building, Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said in a formal opinion.

Scott's opinion Tuesday came in response to a request by Michael R. Berz, chairman of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

Scott said it would be illegal for public schools to hold a liquor license but said he could find no prohibition against private schools or churches doing so.

However, the attorney general noted that state law prohibits the dispensing of alcoholic beverages within 100 feet of a church or school and said in his opinion the 100-foot limit includes the church or school building itself.

"This provision of the Liquor Control Act was enacted for the purpose of protecting churches, schools and other named institutions," Scott wrote. "This protection cannot be waived."

Man dies in Robbins blast

ROBBINS, Ill. (AP) — An explosion that rocked a two-story home in this suburb south of Chicago killed one man, authorities said.

Police found the body of Merit Nance, 47, about a quarter-mile from the rubble of the building, near some railroad tracks.

They originally had searched the rubble for Nance.

The explosion, of unknown origin, destroyed the outer walls and the roof of the dwelling but the interior walls remained standing, fire officials said. No damage estimate was given.

A next-door relative said he believed Nance was in the house at the time of the explosion.

Sears sales set record

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co. had a jolly Christmas with sales in December the highest for any four-week period in the company's 89-year history.

A Sears official said gross sales were $1.76 billion, up 11.5 per cent over last December.

Arthur M. Wood, chairman and chief executive officer, said the strength in consumer spending was "clear evidence that the economic recovery is proceeding as expected."

Tuition boost recommended by state Higher Education Board

CHICAGO (AP) — Higher tuition for public college students has been recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education in its 1977 operating budget of $860.6 million for the state's colleges and universities.

The state board recommended Tuesday that undergraduates pay $60 more a year and that graduate students pay an additional $90.

To offset any hardship to needy students, the board recommended an additional $1.8 million for the state scholarship program to provide financial aid for 13,210 more needy students. The state scholarship program helped 92,300 students this year.

The proposed budget is an 11.7 per cent increase over this year, but it is 20.4 per cent less than what the colleges and universities wanted.

At the same time, the board recommended total capital improvements amounting to $97.9 million for 1977, less than half the 1976 level.

The operating budget is predicated in part on an increase in tax support from the general revenue fund of $85.6 million, or 12.7 per cent over the 1976 figure of $675.6 million.

The board proposed an average 7 per cent salary increase for faculty and staff with an additional 2 per cent for low-salaried employees, if the colleges and universities adopt the tuition increase. If not, the recommendation calls for a 5 per cent increase.

Among other recommendations, the board asked for a supplemental 1976 appropriation of $11.2 million for community colleges to help meet the costs of unexpectedly high enrollments.

The capital improvements budget, for new buildings and remodeling, includes not only new appropriations but reapropriations of funds not spent from the previous budget.

It includes $59.2 million for the universities, $33.9 million for community colleges and $4.7 million for state educational television.

Among major projects not approved for 1977 were a new environmental studies building at Chicago State, a security building at Eastern, a new classroom building and physical plant at Governors State.

Also not approved were a performing arts building at Western, a service building for Southern Illinois University, Carbondale; a medical instructional and research facility at Springfield, and a library addition at the University of Illinois, Urbana.

Daley hits at freeze on funds

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley's reaction to a new court order on hiring quotas for the police department and the resulting freeze on federal revenue sharing funds to the city is "Why should we go down and beg for something that belongs to Chicago?"

"We should have our share," the mayor said Tuesday at a news conference. He announced that the city would comply with the court order to hire more women and members of minorities for the police department—but only if the court will end its freeze on millions of dollars due the city.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Court of Appeals took under advisement the city's appeal to overturn Judge Prentice H. Marshall's decision to withhold the funds until the city ends its alleged discriminatory practices.

The mayor said he considers the court order by Judge Marshall of U.S. District Court "totally un-American."

Marshall, acting in an anti-discrimination suit filed by the Afro-American Patrolmen's League and the U.S. Justice Department, earlier this week extended his ruling that refused to allow Chicago to receive $76 million in 1975 federal revenue sharing funds until it hires more blacks, latinos and women. Daley has been fighting the order for a year.

Daley said: "What about the Polish? What about the Italians? What about the Jews? And don't forget the American Indians. They were here first."

Arnold's Treachery

The capital of Virginia was the scene of a British raid led by Benedict Arnold, on January 5, 1781. Arnold, angered by a reprimand from General George Washington following a trial for misconduct, had offered to deliver West Point, New York, into British hands. When his plan failed, he accepted a commission as brigadier general in the British Army — a demotion from his American commission as major general. He convinced 28 American soldiers to join him in defecting. Arnold took these men and combined them with a force of 1,000 British soldiers. They looted and burned the city that had been chosen as the state capital only two years before, then sailed away, ravaging the Virginia coast.

DO YOU KNOW — What Virginia city did Arnold's raiders burn in January, 1781?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — William Shakespeare was the Bard of Avon.

Missionaries to appear at church

Wally and Phyllis Lee, recently furloughed missionaries, from Papua New Guinea, in a primitive tribal culture one generation out of the stone age will be speaking and showing color pictures at Open Bible Church, Dixon, Thursday at 7 p.m.

The Lees have been serving in a formerly hostile area opened 18 years ago to the white man. Only 12 years prior to the Lees arrival the first missionaries went into this tribe. Their station at an elevation of 7,000 feet is 55 miles by rough jeep road from the nearest air strip. During their four years of service in the Waisa area a Bible Training School has been established with 53 young mountain men in training for native evangelism. Many times these young men minister at the risk of their lives in tribal villages. Mr. Lee reports that six congregations have been established which meet in bamboo and grass thatched village churches built by the nationals. They formerly met for tribal dances now they meet morning and evening for prayer.

Their operation includes a literacy program because 95 per cent of the population is illiterate. In this particular place a disease, similar to Multiple Sclerosis, called Kuru, found only in the Fore tribe is prevalent. Through the ministry of prayer several have been cured of this crippling disease and are now serving in the churches.

The Lees served as lay leaders and youth counselors in Faith Temple, Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Wally served as a district sales supervisor for a food products company and is a Business College graduate. They are ordained ministers with Open Bible Standard Churches headquartered in Des Moines, Iowa.

The Rev. Willis E. Dixon, says that the Lees have an inspirational presentation including pictures, artifacts and native music which they will be presenting.

1776 AMERICAN BICENTENNIAL 1976

(Copyright 1975 American Antiquarian Society)

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 39th in a series of articles on the American Revolution for the Bicentennial year prepared by the American Antiquarian Society in cooperation with the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation.

By DR. FRANCIS G. WALLETT
After near catastrophe at Brooklyn, Washington was on Manhattan Island. Far from secure, he faced another possible trap; but he still waited over two weeks before evacuating New York City (Sept. 12, 1776) and heading for the heights on northern Manhattan. Political pressures and divided opinion on the best policy caused the delay.

Fortunately for the Americans, the British had not pursued their advantage immediately: Lord Howe wanted to use New York's docks to refit his frigates, and he wasted time in abortive peace negotiations with Congress. Had British vessels gone up the East River and secured control of the Harlem River (separating Manhattan Island from the mainland) Washington and much of his army would have been bottled up on the island.

On Sept. 15 General Howe finally made a move, landing four divisions with little or no opposition at Kip's Bay on the eastern side of Manhattan. As General Washington rode toward the scene, he found men retreating in confusion. "Take the walls!" he yelled. With Israel Putnam and other officers he tried in vain to rally the colonials. At the sight of the oncoming Hessians, the Americans threw away their muskets, knapsacks, hats and coats, running away as if the devil were in pursuit.

Washington was so enraged by this cowardly display that he was blinded to his own personal safety. An aide-de-camp literally pulled him away in the nick of time. Throwing his hat on the ground, the commander-in-chief fumed, "Are these the men with whom I am to defend America?"

Before the British could stretch themselves across Manhattan, General Putnam galloped south to rush remaining troops, including Henry Knox's invaluable artillery train, to the northern part of the island. If Putnam's young aide, Aaron Burr, had not guided them by way of a little-used road along the Hudson, all of them would probably have been trapped and captured.

The British soon found that the colonial troops could not always be routed easily. Washington, who called the Kip's Bay affair "disgraceful and cowardly," reorganized his forces to hold off the redcoats in a series of small encounters known as the battle of Harlem Heights. As General Howe spent time that autumn building unnecessary defenses against the weak enemy, the Americans strengthened Ft. Washington in naturally rugged parts of northern Manhattan. General Washington also secured Kings Bridge, the important strategic crossing from the island to the mainland.

Colonial forces having left, Howe occupied New York City without a fight. His secretary, Ambrose Serle, wrote that "Nothing could equal the joy of the inhabitants... One thing is worth remarking, a woman pulled down the rebel standard upon the fort, and a woman hoisted up in its stead His Majesty's flag after trampling the other under foot with the most contemptuous indignation."

If Tories of New York greeted the British warmly, outspoken Patriots scurried to safety elsewhere.

Several newspaper publishers were among those who left the city as the enemy approached in August 1776.

Samuel Loudon, a book dealer who had founded the New York Packet earlier that year, took his paper to Fishkill where he issued official documents of the New York Committee of Safety.

The redoubtable John Holt of the New-York Journal fled to Connecticut where he remained until New York authorities made him the state printer. He had barely resumed operations at Kingston (then Esopus) however, before the British burned the place. On the run again, Holt went to Poughkeepsie and managed to keep the Journal alive until he could bring it back to New York.

Hugh Gaine took his press to Newark, N.J., where he briefly issued the New-York Gazette and Weekly Mercury. As he saw how the military action was going, Gaine decided that the colonial cause was lost. He therefore brought his paper back to New York where he could operate under British protection.

When General Howe landed a large army at Pell's Point on the mainland in mid-October, Washington realized that the enemy was circling to entrap the Americans. Leaving a strong colonial garrison at Ft. Mifflin, which he felt could hold out, he marched the main body of the Continental Army to the mainland and took up a position among the hills of White Plains.

After sharp but indecisive fighting there Washington withdrew to the north. Howe now decided to strike at Ft. Mifflin on Manhattan. Although the garrison fought courageously, it had to surrender. As American watched helplessly from Ft. Lee (across the Hudson in New Jersey) masses of British and Hessian troops swarmed into Ft. Mifflin, capturing almost 3,000 men, much equipment and many cannon (Nov. 16, 1776).

This was the most costly American loss thus far in the war.

With surprising speed for him, General Howe now sent a strong force under Lord Cornwallis to take Ft. Lee. American troops under General Nathaniel Greene managed to evacuate the fort, but in their haste they abandoned guns, supplies and stranding tents.

In the capture of Forts Mifflin and Lee the tally of lost equipment so sorely needed by the Americans was staggering: 146 cannon, about 3,000 small arms, 12,000 shot and 400,000 cartridges.

By now Washington had moved into New Jersey and joined forces with Greene at Hackensack. As the American Army (almost vanishing from deserts) retreated to Princeton, the British under Cornwallis and Howe were in pursuit. Rushing toward the Delaware River, General Washington (having taken all available boats) crossed over into Pennsylvania with an army that had dwindled to 3,000 men.

Once again the American commander had eluded capture. Part of his force was still on the river when the British reached Trenton. If General Howe had not been inexcusably slow in chasing the enemy it seems certain that he could have caught and destroyed Washington's small force. Why he did not move more quickly remains unclear.

It was still a dismal situation for General Washington. The British could easily build rafts or boats to cross the Delaware, and the Americans were hardly ready to make a stand. In desperation Washington called for more troops. Without them, he wrote gloomily, "I think the game will be pretty well up."

At this point General Howe decided to give up the pursuit and went into winter quarters.

What a disheartening series of events had occurred since the British had evacuated Boston earlier in the year. But in the mixture of blunders and faulty strategy General Sir William Howe had lost several opportunities to capture General Washington and crush the Continental Army. The Americans had suffered severe losses around New York and had been forced to retreat across New Jersey. At the end of 1776, however, the battered Continental Army had at least escaped total destruction.

Gen. Sir William Howe (1729-1814), who had served courageously in the French and Indian War, is remembered for his role at Bunker Hill. He succeeded Gen. Thomas Gage as commander-in-chief of British forces in America in 1775, and held that position until his resignation in 1778. This portrait was engraved for John Andrews' "History of the War With America, France, Spain, and Holland" (London, 1785). (Courtesy, American Antiquarian Society.)

Tavern long-used by Bradley U. students is sold

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — For 26 years, Bradley University students took their business, their laughter and their problems to the tavern run by Smokey and Rosie Maroon.

Now the couple has sold it, but Mrs. Maroon says: "There's fulfillment in thinking you've had a part in shaping their character."

There was nothing physically impressive about the place, with its undistinguished furnishings, cheap murals of the American west and bar clock that usually ran five or ten minutes fast.

But after Maroon opened it in 1949 at age 31, the tavern became a favorite haunt for Bradley students. Mrs. Maroon said: "They came not so much because they wanted a drink but a place to meet their friends."

But she said the long daily hours—9 a.m. to 1 the following morning—began to wear, and her husband agreed with her wishes to give up the business.

"Kids would start coming in and say, 'my grandfather told me to tell you hello, Smokey,'" she said. "Now he didn't mind when people would come in and say their dad said to say hello, but when the grandkids started coming in, he knew it was time to quit."

The laconic Maroon was as well known as a professor, and Mrs. Maroon's concern for student welfare earned her the title "West End Housemother." And alumni kept dropping in to relieve old times.

"We had people come in from Bradley after 20 years and 40 pounds heavier," she said. "Smokey'd walk around the bar a couple times, then walk up and say, 'Hey Joe, how are you doing?'"

A former Golden Glove boxer, Maroon says he could stop any student fight by maneuvering between the participants. Word was that he could get over the bar and be at the scene in 3½ seconds.

"The kids knew if they caused trouble, they were barred...and that was a real stigma," said Mrs. Maroon. "They liked Smokey and never wanted to get him in trouble."

Students who had consumed too much also could count on Maroon to sober them up with coffee and find them a ride home. If a ride couldn't be found, Maroon would take them himself.

"I used to take somebody home, then I'd come back and they'd be back there," he said.

But there was a limit of two on one of the tavern's more potent drinks, the Red Devil (vodka, gin, bourbon, rum and Grenadine topped off with beer and served in a milkshake glass).

Girl bowlers win and lose

STERLING—Despite a 485 series by Marty Shroyer, the Dixon High School girls interscholastic "A" bowling team dropped a 2195-2183 decision to Sterling, here, Tuesday.

Dixon took the "B" match 1996-1876 as Pam Kersten rolled a 166 game and a 442 series. In the "A" competition, Shroyer had lines of 170-148-167 for her 485. Jana Ostergrant ended with a 482, with games of 160-142-180.

Deb McClanahan and Karen Knack also bettered 400 as McClanahan recorded 138-145-156 for a 439. Knack got a 404 on games of 130-152-122. Marla Waytenick rounded out the Dixon entrants with a 373 based on 112-123-138.

Dixon, now 6-8, defeats Geneseo

Utilizing 10 service points by Kathy Cook in the decisive game, the Dixon High School girls interscholastic volleyball team defeated Geneseo 20-10, 16-20 and 20-7 at Lancaster Gymnasium Tuesday.

The win ups Dixon's season record to 6-8, with the next action the NCIC tournament at Spring Valley Saturday. Dixon also took the junior varsity match versus Geneseo, 20-1 and 20-3.

Betty Butcofer notched seven points, Mary Gridley five, Jane Coomes three, Donna Pinegar and Kay Schrock two each, while Cook got one in the first game of varsity action. Griffith had half of the visitors points. Nelson added three, while Whitehead and Moore got one each.

Geneseo rallied to win the second game as Boblett tallied nine markers. Moore and Whitehead chipped in with three apiece. Fonk had two, while Nelson, Fortune and Griffith got one each. Coomes had six Dixon points, Pinegar five, Cook three and Renee Payne two.

In the final game, Cook totaled 10 points and got backing from Coomes with five and Pinegar with four. Schrock added the final digit. Griffith, Moore, and Stenzel had two points each for Geneseo, while Boblett got one.

Dixon had an easy time in the junior varsity action as Gaye Ortiguen recorded a dozen points in the first game. Lyn Maves chipped in with five and DeAnne Harrison three. Broxterman had the only Geneseo point.

Carmen Switzer notched seven markers in the second game, while Roxie Smith and Betty Contreras had four each. Lori Heeg added three, while Sue Johnson and Ruth Gridley got one each. Johnson had two and Searle one for the visitors.

Indiana is tops

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Indiana, despite a couple of narrow victories last week, strengthened its hold on the top spot, while two teams — Wake Forest and Washington — made their debuts in the Top Ten in The Associated Press major college basketball poll released today.

Indiana, 10-0, which struggled to a 76-69 victory over St. John's, N.Y., at Madison Square Garden, then beat Big Ten rival Ohio State 66-64, received 62 of 67 first-place votes cast and 1,330 points.

Wake Forest, 10-0, previously ignored by pollsters altogether, shot into national attention with a 95-83 victory over North Carolina and a 104-95 decision over North Carolina State in the Big Four Classic over the weekend. A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters picked them No. 7 this week.

Meanwhile, Washington, 11-0, rocketed from 13th last week to eighth with victories over Northwestern and Texas Tech and a 106-75 romp over Seattle last week.

Wake Forest wound up with 495 points and Washington got 484.

Maryland, 10-0, retained the second spot, receiving the other five top votes for 1,176 points on the strength of convincing victories over Seton Hall and Long Island and a 66-59 win over highly-regarded Princeton.

UCLA, 10-1, clobbered Notre Dame 86-70 Saturday for its 91st consecutive victory at Pauley Pavilion and moved from fourth to third, displacing North Carolina. The Bruins picked up 1,036 points.

Marquette, sixth last week, moved up to fourth after victories over Miami, Ohio, Wisconsin, and South Carolina. The 10-1 Warriors collected 803 points.

High-scoring Nevada-Las Vegas moved into the fifth spot after just barely making it into the Top Ten last week. Nevada-Las Vegas, 13-0, scored 100 points or more in victories last week over Houston, Michigan and Pan American to poll 603 points.

North Carolina, 7-1, dropped to sixth with 572 points.

Tennessee, 10-1 and 12th last week, moved up to ninth, the spot it held in the preseason poll, after victories over Pennsylvania, Tulane and Georgia. Alabama, 8-1 and a 61-59 loser to Princeton last week, dropped from eighth to 10th. Tennessee got 376 points to Alabama's 348.

Notre Dame, embarrassed by UCLA, fell all the way from fifth to 13th with 267 points.

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press college basketball poll with first-place votes in parentheses, season records through Sunday and total points. Points based on 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Forreston wins

LEAF RIVER—Roger Birkholz flipped in four baskets in the third quarter to spark the Forreston Cardinals to a 72-45 non-conference basketball victory over the Leaf River Demons, here, Tuesday night.

Forreston, ahead only 35-29 at half, out-scored Leaf River 22-8 in the decisive third period and then wrapped it up with a 15-8 margin in the final eight minutes. Gary Bronkema added six points in the third stanza while Brian Brown got four.

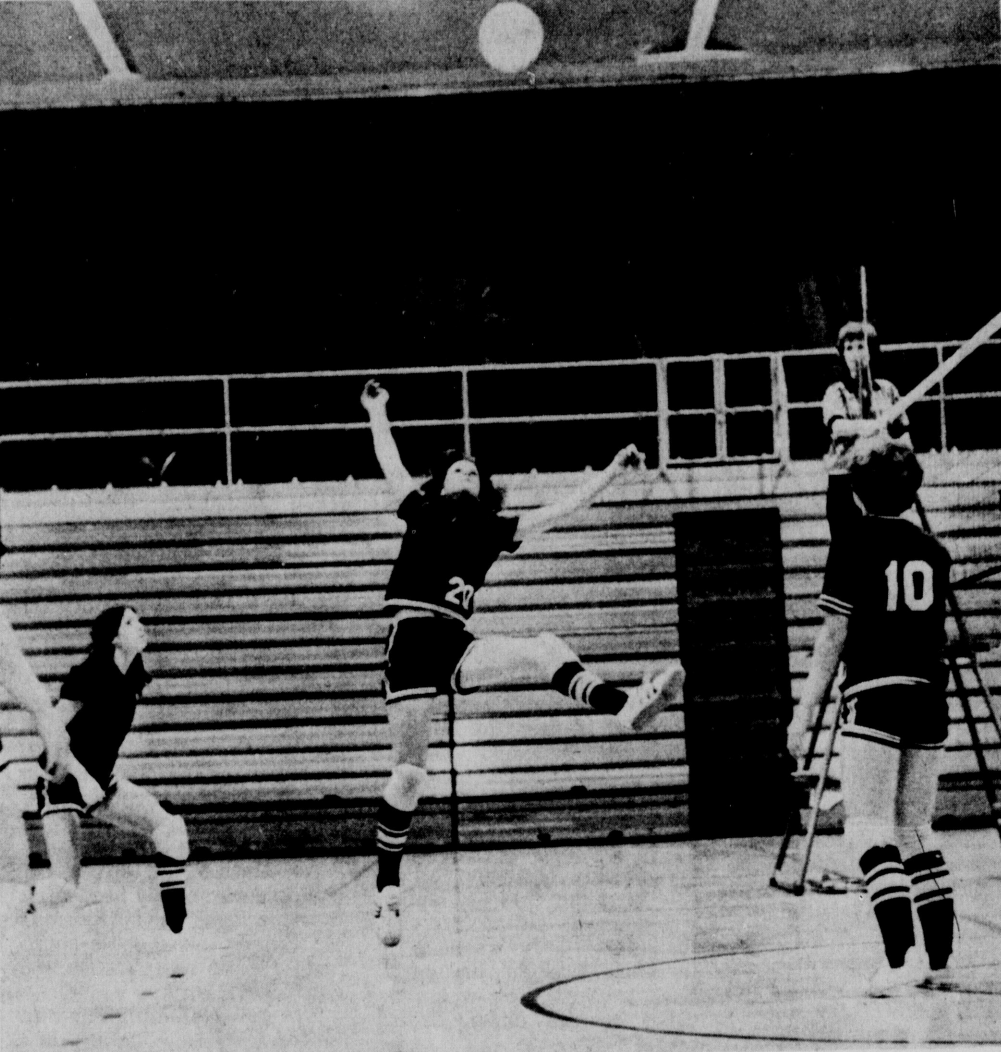

Bronkema paced the Cardinals with 14 markers garnered on two baskets and 10 free throws. Brown, Mike Ross and Birkholz finished with 10 points each. Brad Miller hooped six markers in each of the second and fourth frames and ended with 16 points to pace Leaf River.

Rick Williams contributed 10 before fouling out. Eric Nelson also got 10. Forreston, 7-2 for the year, now returns home to face Pecatonica in a Mid-Northern contest Friday. The Cardinals will then go to Mt. Morris for another conference game Saturday. Leaf River falls to 2-9 for the season.

Riverdale to defend title at Polo Invitational Saturday

POLO—Defending champion Riverdale will face nine challengers, including top threats Ashton, Erie and Polo, at the 14th annual Polo Invitational wrestling tournament Saturday.

The remaining six teams entered are Amboy, Byron, Plano, Prophetstown, Stockton and Winnebago. The 1975 Polo tournament featured nine wrestlers who later went on to state competition, including four grapplers who finished fourth or higher in the finals.

Leading Amboy will be Rich Morris, 7-2-1 at 98 pounds; Doug Kelin, 10-1 at 105; Bob McKnight, 2-2 at 112; Curt Kerchner, 4-2-1 at 138, and Rich Klein 5-1-1 at 145.

Top Ashton wrestlers include Curt Dusing, 14-2 at 112; Tony Snyder, 10-4 at 105; Morgan Thompson, 7-6 at 119, and Andy McCannnon, 10-3 at 155. Dusing is a Polo Invitational returning champion and was a District champion in 1975.

Byron will feature Brad Hageman, 6-1 at 98; Dan Hammond, 7-1 at 105; Church Anderson, 7-0 at 126; Brad Kufalk, 6-2 at 132, and Al Smith, 6-1 at 167. Top Erie hopefuls are Mike Gray, 8-4 at 126; Gail Young, 9-2 at 132; Stan Antosh, 12-0 at 145, and Don Brown 8-3-1 at 155.

Plano features Mark Rexrode, 7-4 at 98; Kurt Olson, 10-0-1 at 119; Jim Love, 6-3-1 at 132; Dan Wilson, 4-4 at 145, and Steve Gatzka, 4-3 at 167. Leading Prophetstown are Dave Chamberlain, 7-3-1 at 98; Dennis Lewis, 4-3 at 112; Dave Ryan, 7-3 at 119; Dave Melton, 3-1 at 138, and Tony Jackson, 6-3 at 185.

Polo will counter with John Butler, 9-3 at 98; Dave White, 7-3 at 105; Matt Woodin, 8-6 at 112; Ed Collins, 9-3 at 119; Mike Byrd, 10-3 at 126; Paul Busser, 12-1 at 155; Mark Ebert, 11-3 at 167; Mike Merry, 7-5-1 at 185, and heavyweight Tony Hess (11-2-1).

Riverdale returns 1975 Polo champs Rory Young (112) and Chet McCoy (119) in addition to Bob McCoy at 105, Rob Rott at 145, Jerry Clark at 155 and Tom Anderson at 167.

Stockton has Jerry Rabe, 9-0 at 98; Jim Brunner, 7-2-1 at 132, and Andy Hawley, 6-3 at 165. Winnebago will send Rob Hazelton, 9-3-1 at 126; Rich Swale, 11-2 at 132, plus Tom Buerkle, 9-2 at 138.

The preliminary round and quarter finals will start at 9:30 a.m., with the semifinals at 2 p.m. The consolation round begins at 7 and the finals at 8. Admission is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children at each session.

Area roundup

Volleyball
The Dixon National Bank took two of three games to climb within one game of the league lead while the Kourt Krushers swept three contests from the Borg-Warner Pointsets to come within two games of the top spot in the Dixon Park District Co-Rec League Monday.

The National Bank beat Farley's 15-12 and 15-5 around a 15-3 loss to up its record to 11-4 at the end of the first round. Farley's is the league leader with a 12-3 ledger. Andrea Alton, Dave Schaab and Tim Patzer led the National Bank, while Pat and Stacy Love, plus Fran Fassler, paced Farley's.

The Kourt Krushers defeated the Pointsets 15-9, 15-13 and 15-13 led by Greg Gerten and Brenda McClellan. Bill Eisenberg and Al Charvat paced Borg-Warner. The Kourt Krushers are now 10-5, with the Pointsets 3-12.

In the final games, the Borg-Warner nudgers upped their season slate to 7-8 by taking two of three from the Highway Hobo's 15-7, 6-15 and 15-7. The winners were paced by John and Tina Boyer. The Highway Hobo's, now 2-13, were led by Chuck Klein and Pat Williams.

ROCHELLE— The Rochelle High School girls interscholastic volleyball team upped its season record to 6-5 with a 20-17 and 20-4 victory over DeKalb, here, Tuesday. Rochelle lost the junior varsity match 19-21, 20-13 and 12-20.

The junior varsity team is now 3-8 for the year. Rochelle will next meet Stillman Valley on Thursday.

Walnut slips by Manlius for win

WALNUT — The Walnut Blue Raiders raced to a 36-21 lead at half, then "Stood around and watched the final half," but managed to slip by Manlius 54-52, here, Tuesday night in a Bureau Valley game.

Walnut upped its conference ledger to 3-0 with the triumph and the Blue Raiders are now 8-5 overall. Pat Dienslake and Mike Munger tossed in six points apiece as Walnut rolled to a 20-10 advantage in the first quarter.

Munger came back to fire in 10 markers during the second stanza to help Walnut to its 15-point lead which evaporated in the final half. Dave McFadden, Blue Raiders coach, stated, "We just stood and watched and watched."

"We had six fouls in the first half and then nine in the second half. Manlius got 11 offensive rebounds in the final half but luckily they converted only two. We didn't screen off and we didn't play good defense. They pressed us and we turned the ball over."

"In the second half, we got 20 shots opposed to their 43. They got ahead of us by one point but Munger finally got five points later to pull it out." The Blue Raiders finished with 23 baskets in 54 attempts for 43 per cent. Manlius countered with 22 of 75 for 29 per cent.

Ed Brokaw paced Walnut with 15 rebounds while Munger pulled in 14. Munger paced all scorers with 21 points on nine field goals and three free throws. Dienslake added 15 markers. Rodney Johnson had 17 and Audie Rudiger 13 for the visitors. Walnut will now host Western (No. 3 in the Class A poll), in a Blackhawk game Friday.

Redmen wrestlers resume

After a long Christmas break, the Sauk Valley College Wrestling Redmen return to the mats tonight at 7, against Waubesa and Thornton. On Saturday the Redmen travel to Palatine to wrestle against Harper, Meramec of St. Louis, and the College of DuPage.

Terry Gray and Mark Henriksen will be eligible to wrestle for the first time. They have previously been ineligible because of credit hour rulings. The Redmen are 3-3-1 for the season.

Co-Rec Volleyball

The Dixon Park District will be sponsoring Co-Rec Volleyball at Jefferson School from 6:30 to 9 every Wednesday beginning tonight. Teams will be formed every Wednesday. The fee is 25 cents per person per night.

FIRST OF THREE—Preston Pearson holds onto the ball as he dashes into the end zone for a touchdown at Los Angeles, Calif. It was the first of three touchdowns scored by Pearson as his Dallas Cowboys won over the Rams, 37-7, to win the National Football Conference title. (AP Wirephoto)

People in the news

BOSTON (AP) — Former U.S. Congresswoman Louise Day Hicks, an outspoken opponent of forced school desegregation busing, has been elected president of the Boston City Council.

Mrs. Hicks, a onetime member of the Boston School Committee and later an unsuccessful candidate for mayor, is the first woman in the city's history to hold the top council post. The election was Monday.

She called for more cooperation between Mayor Kevin H. White and the council, urging monthly meetings between the two.

As council president, Mrs. Hicks will be responsible for several areas of city business, including the selection of committee chairmen from the other eight council members.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Singer-actor John Carroll, who made his mark in Hollywood as Zorro, faces a hearing Jan. 27 on charges of driving while intoxicated and eluding police, according to police records.

Police said the former actor, now 69, who has been living in semiretirement here for the past five years, was arrested last Friday.

Carroll, who starred as the brave Spanish chaser who took up his sword for the oppressed, more recently has been producing and writing.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The late Walt Disney was a hard man to yodel for, says the 80-year-old Spokane man who put the rrrum-bum-bum rhythm in the yodels for Disney's 1937 cartoon, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

"He (Disney) wanted happy yodeling," says Reynard Fraunfelder. "Well, it took quite a while. I couldn't just take the yodel out of my shirtsleeves."

Disney rejected a number of Fraunfelder's suggestions.

Mercenary for Reds in Angola

ROME, Ga. (AP) — A Vietnam veteran who calls himself a "free-lance soldier" says he plans to work for the Communists in Angola because the pay is better than for Western-backed factions in the civil war.

The veteran, who refused to allow his name to be used, was quoted Monday by the Rome News-Tribune as saying both the Soviet Union and the United States are recruiting mercenaries to fight in Angola.

There have been reports — denied by the White House — that the Central Intelligence Agency has recruited mercenaries to fight against Soviet-backed forces.

Although it is illegal for a U.S. citizen to fight in the service of another country, the veteran said the practice is widespread.

He said he will receive $2,800 a month and the rank of major for fighting with the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

"The work will be routine guerilla warfare — the hit and run sort of thing," he was quoted as saying.

In an interview with reporter Betsy Neal, the veteran, who was referred to as "Don," said he was recruited through an advertisement in an Atlanta newspaper.

The manager of classified advertising for the Atlanta Journal and Constitution — the city's two major newspapers — could find no record of such an ad in the past six weeks. He said federal regulations would prohibit any ad specifying men or young persons for jobs.

"Some of my associates on the West Coast say that American recruiters are coming to their door and asking them to sign up for service," the man called Don was quoted as saying.

He told Miss Neal the alleged American recruiters are not identifying the groups they represent but are recruiting in the name of Holden Roberto, head of the U.S.-backed Front for the National Liberation of Angola.

Miss Neal said she was shown documents and letters supporting his claims that he had been recruited by the Soviets to fight in Angola and that he fought for them in Chile in 1969 and 1970.

He said a private investigator in Long Beach, Calif., specializes in finding where mercenaries are needed in the world and what mercenaries are available for service. He did not identify the investigator.

"It takes a $50 deposit and a $10 fee each month to stay on his mailing list," Don was quoted as saying, "but it is worth it to a free-lance soldier."

In Minneapolis, meanwhile, a U.S. Navy veteran who hopes to lead a force of mercenaries to Angola, says he has found 15 men willing to fight.
